News to Friday—The Misfortune of Wednesday Fully Repaired—The Batteries Open on Petersburgh—The Rebels Falling Back on Welden—Scarcity of Water—Ample Provision for the Wounded.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Friday, June 24, 1864.

The temporary misfortune of Wednesday afternoon has been fully repaired, so far as reoccupation of the ground is concerned, but we have not recovered the fifteen hundred prisoners, four pieces and colors lost, nor the five hundred killed and wounded. The enemy, it appears, were massing upon our left, when, the Sixth Corps not getting into position in time, the enemy rolled upon an opening and attacked the Second Corps upon its flank, taking it at great disadvantage, and for a time rolling it up like a piece of paper, and were only repulsed by superhuman efforts.

This movement was exactly what Gen. GRANT attempted to execute at Cold Harbor, and not force his way across the Chickahominy, for a passage of that river was practicable at any moment by a flank movement, as was subsequently effected. Had the Second Corps there succeeded in securing the coveted position on the left of the enemy, the rebel army, with the Chickahominy in its rear, would have been rolled up like a scroll, when a simultaneous attack upon the front by the whole force would have annihilated the whole army of Gen. LEE, and wiped out in an hour this accursed rebellion. But the fates willed it otherwise, and we have been compelled to stand up against a similar attempt upon our own lines.

This morning the batteries of the Eighteenth Corps, and portions of the Fifth and Second, opened upon Petersburgh, but with what effect is not definitely known at this hour. Certain it is that numerous buildings were set on fire.

The Petersburgh and Welden Railroad has been under our guns for several days. Yesterday the Infantry tore up about five hundred yards of the track, when they were compelled to retire. The cavalry has destroyed another important portion of this road further south at Reams Station, and is operating elsewhere at this time.

At I write (10 A. M.) all is quiet, but an attack upon our left flank and rear is anticipated.

Deserters and prisoners from the enemy allege that the rebel army is falling back toward Weldon, N. C. Should this be true, it is possible that these attacks upon our left are to cover that movement. The weather is oppressively hot and the air filled with particles of dust raised by the movement of troops and wagon trains. For more than two weeks there has not been a shower, and the inhabitants hereabouts allege that, unless there is a fall of rain soon, the springs will be all dry. Water is scarce even now. Fortunately for the wounded there is a bountiful supply of ice in the country. The Sanitary and Christian Commissions supply luxuries and comforts; and last, but not least, a better regulated and supplied medical department than any army could heretofore boast, so that all sufferers from wounds or disease are cared for promptly and made comfortable.

In devotion to the cause the present army will challenge the admiration of the world. As illustrating the general principle that prevails, I will give two instances. The time of the Eleventh Massachusetts expired some ten days ago. Col. BLAISDELL induced a battalion of officers and men to remain awhile longer. Yesterday morning Col. BLAISDELL was killed, and last evening his remains were sent home with the regiment. Col. SHOUGHTON, of the Second United States Sharpshooters was severely injured by a shell in one of the battles near Spottsylvania Court-house three days ago. He returned to his command, still unable to turn his head from the injury received, and immediately went to the front. Within a few hours thereafter he was again wounded, and now languishes in a rebel prison. The same spirit animates a majority of this whole command.

No General Engagement—The Unfortunate Affair on Wednesday—One Thousand Prisoners and Five Pieces of Artillery Lost—Promiscuous Picket Firing—The Weather—Longstreet and A. P. Hill Moving Toward Weldon—Effects of the Mining on Petersburgh.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

HEADQUARTERS SIXTH CORPS, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, Friday, June 24.

No general engagement has as yet taken place. Our lines remain the same, in great part, as established forty-eight hours ago, since which time irregular firing has been kept up at every point. The unfortunate turn in events on Monday afternoon, by which over a thousand prisoners of the First Brigade, Third Division, and five pieces of Cushing's battery, were lost by a surprise demonstration by the enemy, has caused a strict vigilance to be kept along the entire line.

On Wednesday, the casualties resulting from promiscuous firing and skirmishing footed up largely in this corps. A list of wounded is sent herewith, embracing also those of yesterday.

The weather yesterday was extremely oppressive; warmer, indeed, than at any time this Summer. The troops suffered accordingly, though but little was done during the day to excite the men.

Last evening the enemy manœuvred considerably to the right and left, and the Fifth Corps, with detachments of others, were constantly kept active in countermarching to guard against any demonstration on our left or centre.

This morning, while a portion of the Fifth Corps, on our left, were marching across an open field, to relieve the troops at the front, a terrible fire was opened on them by the enemy, with artillery. The exposed movement of our men gave him a clear aim and accurate range for a few moments. This was soon brought to an end by a little artillery practice by our guns, and again all is quiet. About the time of this attack a furious cannonade was heard on the right, which proved to be SHERR's bombardment of Petersburgh, which continued for an hour.

This morning LONGSTREET and A. P. HILL are, it is ascertained, moving toward Weldon, having vacated their intrenchments in our front.

During the brief skirmish this morning a few prisoners were taken, from which it appeared that BEAUREGARD's main army are now covering Petersburgh, while LEE's forces are moving to our left, with what design remains yet to be seen.

A rebel deserter, who came in this morning, states that our recent shelling of Petersburgh by BURNSIDE's artillery, was very disastrous. He adds that the rebels are marching and countermarching to guard against our expected attack.

KIRKE.

An Unsuccessful Charge on Gen. Burnside's Corps—The Sharpshooters Again Annoying our Skirmishers—Brisk Engagement Between the Sixth Corps and the Rebels—The Railroad to City Point and Petersburgh Being Repaired.

HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, Saturday, June 25—9 A. M.

The only fighting that took place yesterday was an attack made by the enemy on Gen. BURNSIDE, but whether intended as a feint to cover some more important move, or an attempt to break through his lines, it was a failure. They opened with a heavy fire of artillery, which was returned by our batteries, and the rebels, making a charge, were driven back in confusion, upwards of one hundred being taken prisoners. This occurred about 6 A. M., and the artillery firing was kept up for an hour, when all became quiet at that point.

About the same time a battery opened in front of a hospital on the left of the Fifth Corps, which the rebels seemed desirous of cleaning out, but were deterred by our guns before any damage resulted.

Picket firing is still kept up along the entire line, and in almost every hospital are a few victims of this species of warfare.

It is almost impossible for a change to be made in the skirmish line without some loss from the enemy's sharpshooters; and these lines have to be relieved always after dark on that account.

The engagement between the Sixth Corps and the enemy for possession of the railroad on Wednesday was quite severe, particularly in front of the Second Division, commanded by Gen. WRIGHT. Only a short distance of the railroad had been destroyed when the party were attacked by a heavy force of the enemy under Gen. ANDERSON, supported by WILCOX's division. Capt. BRADY, of the Third Vermont, was in charge of the party that reached the road, and he fell back slowly while the skirmish line held the enemy in check; but a body of the enemy made a flank movement, expecting to turn the left flank of the line of battle. They, however, did not penetrate far enough, although they succeeded in taking a large number of the skirmishers prisoners, principally of the Fourth and Eleventh Vermont Regiments of the Vermont Brigade.

The enemy afterward advanced and attempted to break through the line at several points, but were met with such a heavy fire from our forces that they were driven back every time with heavy loss. They finally, at dark, gave up the effort and retreated across the railroad bank, where they took up an advantageous position.

Our loss was very light in killed and wounded, while that of the enemy, it is supposed, was more than double ours.

We lost quite a number of prisoners, but the figures cannot be as yet correctly given.

The railroad from City Point to Petersburgh is being placed in order, and an engine and cars are already procured to put on it as soon as it is in running condition.

Supplies are received at the front regularly, and troops lack nothing in this respect, but they suffer somewhat from scarcity of water.

The Indiana Troops.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sunday, June 26.

Gov. MORTON has addressed a memorial to Congress relative to recruits enlisted into old regiments and batteries prior to 1862, with the understanding that they were to serve only for the unexpired term of the organizations to which they were attached, and who are now held for the full term of three years.

The question had heretofore been submitted to the War Department, but relief could not be granted, owing to the form of enlistment. The memorial sets forth the acts fully, and prays Congress, as a matter of justice and good faith toward soldiers, to take such action as will secure their discharge according to the original understanding.

FROM GEORGIA.

Gen. Hooker's Corps—Movements up to June 12—Battles of Resaca and Dallas—The Nine Days' Fighting in Georgia.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ON THE FIELD, NEAR DALLAS, Georgia, Friday, June 3, 1864.

Could you see your correspondent, as he sits transcribing these details to you, surrounded by all the din and confusion of battle, with close before him the breastworks from behind which our brave volunteers are dealing destruction to all of the enemy who have the temerity to expose their forms to view from their works not a hundred yards distant, you would hardly desire to place in print items of intelligence, dotted down amid such distracting noise and accompanied by such disturbing and discordant elements. But you must remember that he has become, like all your army correspondents, inured to thinking, writing and acting in the midst of just such circumstances. In this case we have for nine days listened to the roar of the cannon and heard "the music of the balls." The explosions, slaughter and tumult of battle have not left us for a day or a night or an hour during this tedious, sleepless time. From the first occupation of this position, on the 27th of May, to the present time, the steady work of death has progressed without advance or withdrawal of any portion of the line. The position is strongly fortified, and our quarters guarded from the sharpshooter's bullet by barricades of timber and earth. Behind the work one is well protected; but an arm or a hand exposed is sure to draw a dangerous degree of attention from the marksmen who fill the trees in the enemy's direction.

While the glorious old Potomac Army is striking such terrible blows to the cause of the traitors, the Army of Georgia is not idle. After severe engagements on Rockyfaced and Chattanooga Ridges, on the 9th and 9th, in which the Twentieth Corps bore a prominent part, and by a brilliant assault at Mill Creek Gap, diverting the attention of the enemy, allowing McPHERSON to pass to the south, through Snake Creek Gap unmolested, the command concentrated at a point six miles westward from Resaca, and took position in the centre of the army—WOODHAMS' and BUTTERFIELD's divisions in front line and GRANT's in reserve. Heavy skirmishing and occasional light cannonading continued through the day until evening. The morning of Saturday opened with brisk skirmishing, which, as the day advanced, developed into heavy musketry fire, indicating a severe engagement in the front. In the afternoon the loud roar of artillery, and the movement of stragglers and ambulances of wounded to the rear, gave evidence of the progress of a battle. About dusk the guns of BUTTERFIELD's division were brought into play, and subsequently the remaining divisions of Gen. HOOKER's forces were placed into position on a ridge parallel with the Resaca and Calhoun road. The position of the army at this junctures was nearly in the shape of a crescent with the inner face toward Resaca, where in strong intrenchments JOHNSTON was disputing our progress, and the horns, or right and left extremities of the lines, resting on or near the railroad above and below the town. About 9 o'clock on Sunday morning the "star corps" was again in brave leader in its old position in the front line, "face to the foe." This bright Sabbath opened with a round of cannon that soon ripened a battle not behind the "Resaca" of '47 in fierceness and violence. The whole army of Gen. THOMAS was now actively though not desperately engaged, and advanced steadily, narrowing the lines of combat until the enemy was driven to his forts and earthworks in the small town, and on the hills near the railroad depot.

The Twentieth Corps, to which my observation was necessarily limited, found itself a little to the left of the town and actively engaging the foe near one of his strong forts, the guns of which it became absolutely necessary to silence, or the position gained. Gen. HOOKER formed a column of assault of parts of Gens. BUTTERFIELD's and GRANT's commands, which advanced with wild cheers to the attack. So impetuous was the charge that the enemy was driven from the guns, but he took refuge in a formidable breastwork which commanded the embrasures completely, so that our brave men were unable to remove the abandoned cannon without incurring sad destruction from the storm of grape and bullets which raised upon them each time it was attempted to spike or haul away the trophies. But if the cannon were not attainable by the victors, neither were they useful to the enemy. Both combatants lay watching them until night set in. As soon as darkness shrouded the movement, the men of CONRAM's brigade of GRANT's division, the famous "white stars" of the old Twelfth Corps, advanced silently and crawled into the trenches under the dirt walls of the fort, and dug away the embankment, letting the guns down into the ditch, from which they hauled them triumphantly to the rear. These four guns, the only ones taken in this battle, singularly enough, were the remainder of a battery of six guns, two of which were taken by Gen. GRANT in HOOKER's assault on Lookout Mountain.

These successes and the danger to the enemy's rear, from a force under McPHERSON, which was crossing the Oatenolah River below Resaca, put an end to battle, and JOHNSTON's army precipitately retreated in the direction of Kingston and Rome.

On the 16th the army passed through Resaca in close pursuit, Gen. HOOKER's corps following pretty nearly the line of the railroad to Cassville, where a halt was ordered prior to crossing the Etowah. The army was permitted to refit and replenish supplies from Kingston. Until the 23d of May was allowed for this purpose.

On the 23d, we again started on the trail of the still retreating foe. Passing Stylesboro on the 24th, Gen. HOOKER crossed with his command a high barren ridge near Raccoon Creek, and encamped at night at a place called Burnt Hickory. The enemy was encamped at Pumpkin Vine Creek, further on, about 40 miles distant from Atlanta. At this creek GRANT's division arrived at 10 A. M. on the 4th, immediately crossing in advance of the army. Gen. WILLIAMS was sent to cross on the Dallas and Cartersville road, two miles to the left, and Gen. BUTTERFIELD went a similar distance to the right to effect a passage.

Gen. GRANT had advanced a mile on the Burnt Hickory and Dallas road, when he was suddenly met by a furious fire from the enemy concealed in the recess of a dense wood. Quickly forming in line of battle the "white stars" again crossed bayonets and exchanged deadly volleys of musketry with the foe. The woods were filled with our own and the enemy's killed and wounded. A number of prisoners taken in the first onset, disclosed to the satisfaction of Gens. STEDMAN and HOOKER, who were all present, that the opposing force was Hood's rebel corps. Undaunted by the overwhelming numbers thus instructed, Gen. GRANT's division gallantly stood its ground, while Gen. HOOKER dispatched swift messengers to recall BUTTERFIELD and WILLIAMS to the assistance of GRANT. For five hours did this brave and skillful officer, with his heroic division, battle successfully with the rebel corps. Not a foot of ground was yielded, though three hundred of our dead and wounded were in a short time stretched upon the ground. At about five o'clock P. M., the other two divisions arrived, and under HOOKER as leader, an advance was made in column by brigades, Gen. WILLIAMS in the lead. At six o'clock the enemy had been driven two miles to his intrenchments, evidently previously prepared, in a thick wood.

The Second Division now took position in the centre, and the whole corps skirmished with the enemy during the night of the 25th. This position has been maintained up to the present time of writing. The firing has not ceased for a moment.

The other corps of the army coming up on the 26th and participating in the conflict, filled the woods with a continuous noise of battle, that effectually renders abortive any attempt at rest.

The constant excitement and loss of sleep is becoming fearfully apparent upon our men, who are literally worn out fighting and skirmishing. The stench of decaying unburied dead lying between the opposing breastworks is sickening beyond description. How long this is to continue is beyond surmising. Gen. McPHERSON has occupied Dallas, which seems almost in the enemy's rear, but so consummately are they fortified by elaborate works, that it is deemed a work of rashness to attempt their assault. A flank movement is in preparation which will most likely dislodge them.

Losses have been heavy on all corps, but most particularly on ours, the Twentieth, which has lost since May 5 nearly 4,000 men.

The following is a list of the casualties among the commissioned officers of GRANT's division since the 25th:

Killed—Col. J. R. Patrick, 5th Ohio Volunteers; Capt. M. H. Todd, 111th Pennsylvania Volunteers, and Lieut. J. W. Hitt, 66th Ohio Volunteers.

The division has lost twelve hundred since leaving Bridgeport on the 2d of May. Of this number three hundred and fifty fell at Dug Gap, four hundred and fifty at Resaca, and four hundred in this fighting to the present date.

NEAR ACWORTH, Ga., Sunday, June 12, 1864.

Since writing the foregoing, which has been delayed in the hope of furnishing details of the accomplishment of decisive results gained by Gen. SHERMAN's lengthened conflict with the enemy, the plans of attack seem to have thoroughly changed. On the 4th the lines were shifted from the Dallas front to the left, so as to again adopt the line of the railroad. This change was doubtless determined on as furnishing better facilities for supplying the "larger" than the far-off depot at Kingston. Altoona bridge has been rebuilt to allow the cars to run once more "to our very camps." The locomotive's whistle is heard at Acworth, the new depot, three miles distant, while I write. To our army it is a curious reflection, and to the enemy, doubtless, a very suggestive one, that the trains of supplies thus heralded have come to us over a this line of communication exactly two hundred and fifty-four miles in length. Gen. SHERMAN deserves great credit for so minutely perfected use of this long avenue of intercourse with Nashville—our actual base.

The change of the points of attack has involved a corresponding alteration in the enemy's front. To protect his flank, JOHNSON has fallen back to Pine Hill, a ridge of difficult approach, covering the roads to Atlanta, the point to which our capitulants tend. This coveted city is but thirty miles distant. Gen. McPHERSON holds the railroad as far as Big Shanty, a small hamlet of high-sounding reputation, which is within seven miles of Marietta, which is twenty miles away from Atlanta.

Pine Hill Ridge is but the outpost to the most defensible position yet held by the enemy—one to which he will undoubtedly retreat if pressed from his present vantage ground. I rather to Kenesaw Mountain and the ridge connecting it with Lost Mountain, situated several miles to the southwest. It is said that this line will give Gen. SHERMAN more trouble than any he has yet attempted. It is, however, too far removed from Atlanta to be successfully employed in covering that city from a flank movement; but flank movements are more or less dangerous, from the fact that by them the rear and line of supply are rendered greatly exposed. SHERMAN is reported to have expressed his willingness to allow the enemy to pass to Chattanooga while he moves on to Atlanta. It is argued that while we can at any time detach ourselves from the railroad, with twenty days' supplies in our trains, and with pontoons and necessary appliances, adequate to march us to the Gulf or to Augusta, re-that is JOHNSTON—cannot for lack of trains, move more than five or seven days journey to our rear. This would easily carry him to Chattanooga, but not until the destruction or removal of the subsistence and quartermaster stores could be accomplished. These speculations and many others are rife in camp. In the history of wars remarkable and unforeseen occurrences frequently happen, but more strange than any would be the voluntary abandonment of Atlanta with its workshops and arsenals of such vital importance to the impoverished adherents of the rebellion. This repository of Southern industry will not be forsaken by JOHNSTON or his guardian army until the last hope expires within the breasts of those who are striving to establish the rebel reign.

A capture given in by spies, escaped prisoners and deserters, agrees in the one particular that every preparation is being made to hold Atlanta as the last rallying point of all the rebel strength in Georgia. With its fall, goes Alabama and Mississippi; and the "Confederacy" will be circumscribed to the territory lying east of the Savannah River and Cumberland Mountains and south of the Virginia Central Railroad. If other words, Virginia and the Carolinas would constitute the uncertain realm of JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Rebel Raids—The Capture of Trains.

LOUISVILLE, Sunday, June 26.

On the morning of the 16th, the rebel Gen. WILSON, commanding a brigade of 2,500 men, crossed the railroad, between Kingston and Dalton, capturing and burning five freight trains loaded with supplies.

On the 20th Capt. GROVES made a raid on the railroad, five miles from Resaca, and captured two freight trains with supplies.

Col. LAGRANGE, of the First Wisconsin Cavalry commanding a brigade, was captured on the 10th.

Col. GAGE, of the Twenty-ninth Wisconsin, wounded at the recent assault on Kenesaw Mountain, passed through here to-night, en route for St. Louis.

On the 19th, three companies of the Fifty-fourth Virginia (rebel) came into our lines on the Chattahoochee, took the oath of allegiance, and were employed as teamsters and laborers.

A camp of rebel conscripts on the Hendersonville road, six miles from Atlanta, on Friday, broke for our lines. They numbered eight hundred, six hundred, of whom got in and remain. Two hundred were re-captured by the rebels.

ISRAEL B. TUPPER, chief of the scouts of the Army of the Cumberland, on the 11th inst., with four men, made a daring descent on a forage post, fourteen miles southwest of Atlanta. He captured a rebel Lieutenant Colonel, a Captain and others, including a sergeant, burnt a storehouse, containing fifty thousand bushels of corn and a large lot of bacon.

The Governor of Georgia says that if it is necessary he will call out the Georgia militia and withdraw the Georgia troops from the Confederacy to carry out the purposes of his proclamation.

Cedar Bluffs have been thoroughly fortified by the rebels, and by them are considered impregnable.

Mobile is garrisoned by two small brigades of rebel troops, the remainder having been sent to reinforce JOHNSTON.

FROM SOUTH CAROLINA.

BARBARITY OF THE REBELS.

The subjoined letter, written by the rebel Gen. SAM. JONES to Maj.-Gen. J. G. FOSTER, and sent to the latter under flag of truce, has reference to a matter that calls for the immediate attention of our authorities. If the rebels choose to inaugurate a mode of warfare which places under the fire of our batteries five of our Generals and forty-five of our line-officers—all taken and acknowledged as prisoners of war, then it is time for us to adopt such rigid measures in retaliation as to cause the rebels to forever cease to exercise such cruel and fiendish acts. Following the rebel Jones' letter is a reply written by Maj.-Gen. FOSTER. It will be observed he has applied to the President for a transfer to this department of rebel officers, equal in number and rank with the Union officers under fire. We hope these officers will be forth-coming, and we pledge the country Gen. FOSTER will make of them most excellent use.

HEADQUARTERS, DEPARTMENT OF SOUTH CAROLINA, GEORGIA AND FLORIDA, CHARLESTON, June 13, 1864.

GENERAL: Five Generals and forty-five field officers of the United States Army, all of them prisoners of war, have been sent to the city for safe keeping. They have been turned over to Brig.-Gen. RIPLEY, commanding the First Military District of this department, who will see that they are provided with commodious quarters in a part of the city occupied by non-combatants, the majority of whom are women and children.

It is proper, however, that I should inform you that it is a part of the city which has been for many months exposed, day and night, to the fire of your guns.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

(Signed.) SAM. JONES, Maj.-Gen. Comg.

Maj.-Gen. J. G. FOSTER, Commanding U. S. Forces on coast of S. C., G. & F.

Official Copy: THOMAS J. ROBINSON, First Lieut. 21st U. S. C. T., A. A. A. G.

Maj.-Gen. Sam. Jones, Commanding Confederate Forces, Department of South Carolina, Georgia and Florida:

GENERAL: I have to acknowledge the receipt this day of your communication of the 13th inst., informing me that five Generals and forty-five field officers of the United States Army, prisoners of war, have been sent to Charleston for safe keeping; that they have been turned over to Brig.-Gen. RIPLEY, with instructions to see that they are provided with quarters in a part of the city occupied by non-combatants, the majority of which latter you state are women and children. You add that you deem it proper to inform me that it is a part of the city which has been for many months exposed to the fire of our guns. Many months since, Maj.-Gen. Q. A. GILLMORE, U. S. A., warned Gen. BEAUREGARD, then commanding at Charleston, that the city would be bombarded. This notice was given that non-combatants might be removed, and that women and children spared from harm. Gen. BEAUREGARD, in a communication to Gen. GILLMORE, dated Aug. 21, 1863, informed him that the non-combatant population of Charleston would be removed with all possible celerity. That women and children have been since retained by you in a part of the city which has been for many months exposed to fire, is a matter decided by your own sense of humanity.

I must, however, protest against your action in thus placing defenseless prisoners of war in a position exposed to constant bombardment. It is an indefensible act of cruelty, and can be designed only to prevent a continuance of our fire upon Charleston. That city is a depot for military supplies. It contains not merely arsenals, but also foundries and factories for the manufacture of munitions of war. In its ship-yards several armed iron-clads have already been completed, while others are still upon the stocks in course of construction. Its wharves on the banks of the rivers on both sides of the city are filled with cotton. Co-factory these means of continuing the war is, therefore, our object and duty. You seek to defeat this effort, not by means known to honorable warfare, but by placing unarmed and defenseless prisoners under fire.

I have forwarded your communication to the President, with the request that he will place in my custody an equal number of prisoners of the like grades, to be kept by me in positions exposed to the fire of your guns, so long as you continue the course stated in your communication.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

(Signed) J. G. FOSTER, Maj.-Gen. Comdg.

Official copy: THOMAS J. ROBINSON, First Lieut. 21st U. S. C. T., and A. A. A. G., Headquarters Department of South Carolina.

The following extract, including the names of the officers now in Charleston within range of our fire, is taken from the Charleston Tri-Weekly Mercury, of June 14. It bears its own explanation:

"For some time it has been known that a batch of Yankee prisoners, comprising the highest in rank now in our hands, were also to be brought hither to share the pleasure of the bombardment. They accordingly arrived here on Sunday. We give a list of their names and rank:

Brig.-Gen. Seymour, Wessells, Scammon, Shaler, Hickman, Cols. T. G. Graves, R. Rawkins, R. Harriman, J. H. Lehman, O. H. Legrange, W. J. Lee, E. White, H. C. Bolinger, H. L. Brown, E. L. Dana, E. Fardell. Lieut.-Cols. R. S. Hays, N. B. Hunter, F. N. Higginbotham, G. C. Joslin, W. R. McMakin, D. Miller, W. C. Maxwell, J. D. Mayhew, S. Moritt, E. Alcott, J. Pelsley, G. F. Rogers, J. H. Burnham, C. R. Baldwin, W. G. Bartholomew, W. R. Cook, C. J. Dickerson, G. T. Fellows, G. A. Fairbanks, W. Gleon, T. E. Stafford, W. A. Stewart, F. S. Swift, A. W. Taylor, W. P. Meachin. Majors C. H. Burns, W. F. Baker, R. W. Bates, J. E. Clarke, D. A. Carpenter, W. Crandall, E. D. Crank, J. Hall, J. H. Johnson.

These prisoners, we understand, will be furnished with comfortable quarters in that portion of the city most exposed to the enemy's fire. The commanding officer on Morris Island will be duly notified of the fact of their presence in the shelled district, and, if his batteries still continue their wanton and barbarous work, it will be at the peril of the captive officers."

A MILITARY EXECUTION.

On Sunday last, at a little after 10 A. M., a private in Company D, Forty-first New-York Regiment, named JOHN BURNS, alias John Flood, was publicly shot for desertion. Burns joined the regiment as a substitute, having, according to all accounts, left Canada for that express purpose. Some weeks ago, when the regiment was on duty at Kiawah Island—the one next below Folly Island—Burns, in company with three others, attempted to cross over to the enemy. Between the opposing picket lines was a creek, which all of the party swam except Burns; he, being unable to swim, stood upon the bank, making signs to the rebels to take him off in a boat, but before the boat could reach him he was apprehended by a patrol sent out for that purpose. Burns stated, while in the guard-house, that he was forced to join the regiment while in a state of intoxication; but that assertion, together with numerous others which he made at different times, were looked upon as very doubtful. A short time since the Colonel of the Forty-first learned, through rebel sources, that the three men who succeeded in gaining the enemy's lines are thoroughly tired of their situation. They find the condition of things far different than that which had been represented to them. It is a very significant circumstance, that nearly, if not quite all, of the deserters from this department, for some time past, joined the regiments as substitutes. Another remarkable feature of the case is that a great many of the number came direct from Canada. There is little doubt but that these parties are employed by the rebel Government as spies, and adopt the method of deserting to pass between the lines. Rebel emissaries in Canada, of course, have much to do with this sort of business. Deserters to the enemy will not receive a particle of sympathy from Gen. FOSTER.

THIEVES.

Judging from the frequent thefts at Hilton Head, there appears to be in our midst a set of rascals who come here for the express purpose of stealing. One night last week no less than three private quarters were entered and goods and valuables taken therefrom. It is not thought the men are soldiers, but civilians employed as laborers in the Quartermaster's Department. Provost-Marshal-General HALL is on the alert for the prowling parties, and we congratulate ourselves that it will not be long before one or more of the thieves will be arrested and a suitable example made.

ST. JOHN'S DAY

will be appropriately observed at Beaufort by the Masonic fraternity in the department. There will be present on the occasion a large number of officers of high rank who belong to the order.

THE MILITIA.

By an order recently issued by Gen. FOSTER, all civilians throughout the department are to be enrolled as militiamen. They will be formed in companies, and will meet at stated places at appointed times for the purpose of drill. It is the intention that, in case the exigencies of the service require it, the civilians—and they are numerous in the department—shall step forward, musket in hand, and take a position in the line. Parties who contemplate visiting the Department of the South, with a view of entering military duty, will find themselves on their arrival to be woefully mistaken.

A HOOK AND LADDER COMPANY

is in process of organization at Hilton Head. One or two meetings have been held, and the principal officers chosen. The number of members will be limited to about thirty. We have at the Head three fire engines which have, on three or four occasions, performed excellent service. The character and location of the buildings here are such that a fire would do immense damage unless promptly checked.

THE WATER WITCH.

I am happy to state that my account, sent some time ago, of the capture of the gunboat Water Witch by the rebels, hardly did justice to those on board. The statement said to have been made by a colored man who escaped at the time of the capture, which statement was believed and credited by numerous naval officers, appears to have been far from the facts of the case—judging from the rebel account of the affair contained in a Savannah paper of the 5th inst. In that we find the gunboat was captured by a party commanded by Lieut. PATON, who cut down a sentinel with a cutlass, and, in return, was immediately shot through the head by one of our men. The rebels admit that the struggle on deck lasted half an hour, and resulted in a loss on their side of seven killed and twelve wounded, although it is not made clear whether or not resistance was offered at the time the boarding was going on. Our loss was trifling. The Water Witch was of 370 tons, and, at the time of her capture, carried one 10-pounder and three 12-pounders, her crew consisting of 60 men.

WHIT.

RICHMOND, Friday, June 17.

A dispatch from Gen. LEE to the President, this afternoon, says:

At 11 o'clock last night we took the breastworks at Howlett's House, and other portions of the same line. Our battery at Howlett's having been reestablished, five of the enemy's vessels have been sunk. No rumors are here within reach, as they have all taken refuge behind the works. The fire was close fighting this morning near Petersburgh, without result.

(Signed) R. E. LEE.

PETERSBURGH, Sunday, June 19.

GRANT's whole army is in front of this place, in line of battle, and more or less fighting has taken place every day since the 16th. The Yankees have been generally repulsed, gaining little or no ground since Wednesday, when they got within two and a half miles of the city, taking some of our outer works, which they still hold. Shells have been occasionally thrown into the city, doing, however, little damage.

The people of Petersburgh are quiet and resolute, and all able to bear arms are in service.

Advices from Lynchburgh say the enemy have been pursued, and that we captured three pieces of artillery and 500 prisoners.

The bulk of GRANT's army is south of the Appomattox.

IN THE FIELD, KENESAW MOUNTAIN, Friday, June 17, via Atlanta.

The enemy kept up slow skirmishing and occasional firing along the line of the Nickajack Creek, and has fortified Pine Mountain. It is reported that Rousseau has reached Chattanooga with reinforcements from St. Louis, on their way to join SHERMAN. From the close proximity of the enemy, a battle cannot long be avoided. The enemy's railroad trains run to Big Shanty.

THREE MILES WEST OF MARIETTA, Saturday, June 18.

The enemy has massed a large number of his forces on our left. The cannonading and musketry are incessant, assuming almost to an engagement.

Rain continues, rendering the roads unfavorable for operations. The indications are that our left and centre will be attacked. The army is in splendid spirits, and ready for an attack.

Deserters came in this morning drunk.

There was not a battle worth mentioning on any point yesterday. Several prisoners were captured this morning.

MARIETTA, Saturday, June 18.

Rain has been falling heavily and incessantly the greater part of last night and all this morning.

MARIETTA, Sunday, June 19.

The enemy to-day shifted their right, throwing it further toward the east. Information from undoubted sources says the Yankee troops are much dispirited and demoralized from recent numerous defeats and sickness. Deserters in squads of ten are constantly coming into our lines or leaving for their homes. Skirmishing was continued to-day with unimportant results.

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 26, 1864.

THE DIFFERENCES ON THE LOAN BILL.

The Opposition in Congress are endeavoring through their organs to screen themselves from responsibility for their factious efforts to embarrass the Government finances, by citing the differences of opinion existing among undoubted supporters of the Administration as to the best mode of securing the greatest strength to the Treasury. To site Hon. THADDEUS STEVENSON as in sympathy with these factionists, is rather a bold stretch of impudence seeing. The venerable Chairman of the Finance Committee honestly believing that his views if carried out would the most readily accomplish the great end of obtaining funds to carry on the war, was entitled to submit his plan for the judgment of the House.

So, too, with the Hon. T. M. FERRIS, of the Cayuga District of New-York. He submitted a modification of the bill reported by the Finance Committee, and supported it in a brief speech of great clearness and force, which attracted marked and respectful attention from all sides of the House. His amendment failed only because it was represented to members that the Secretary of the Treasury would, on the whole, prefer the committee's bill.

It is worthy of remark that the Ben Wood party, whose organ professes to see in the latter amendment hostility to the Government, did not sustain it. Ben Wood himself opposed it upon the floor of the House by energetic private efforts—doubtless because he believed its success would have resulted in a heavy fall in gold, of which the Hon. BEN claims to be carrying a large amount on speculation.

Dispatch to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, June 26.

CONGRESSIONAL BUSINESS.

The two Houses of Congress have yet to act upon the amendments to several measures, including the Fortification, the Miscellaneous Appropriation and the Tariff Bills. The Committee of Ways and Means have no more bills of a public character to report, the last one being for sundry civil expenses upon which there had been no legislative action. The House bill amendatory of the Pacific Railroad Act and the Loan Bill have been sent to the Senate for its concurrence.

THE COMMUTATION CLAUSE.

The Senate having passed an act to repeal the $300 commutation clause, and the House having previously refused, by a decisive vote, to do so, it is supposed that the last action on the question of the draft will be settled by a Committee of Conference.

CIRCULAR FROM THE PROVOST-MARSHAL.

WAR DEPARTMENT, PROVOST MARSHAL GENERAL'S OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., Sunday, June 26.

Persons not fit for military duty, and not liable to draft from age and other causes, have expressed a desire to be personally represented in the army. In addition to the contributions they have made in the way of bounties, they propose to procure at their own expense and present for enlistment recruits to represent them in the service. Such practical patriotism is worthy of special commendation and encouragement. Provost-Marshals, and all other officers acting under the bounties, are ordered to furnish every facilitation in their power to enlist and muster acceptably acceptable representative recruits presented in accordance with the design herein set forth. The name of the person whom the recruit represents will be noted on the enlistment and descriptive roll of the recruit, and will be carried forward from those papers to the other official records which form his military history. Suitably prepared certificates of their personal representation in the service will be forwarded from this office to be filled out and issued by the Provost-Marshal to the persons who put in representative recruits. JAMES B. FRY, Provost-Marshal-General.

Fires.

ST. LOUIS, Sunday, June 26.

The block between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, Franklin-avenue and Gay-street, was burned this afternoon. The following are the principal losses: Conwell & Co.'s flouring mill, $20,000 on the building and $15,000 on the stock; H. Hammond, grocer, $10,000 to $20,000; Andrew Knox, same $10,000. The total loss is probably from $60,000 to $70,000. The insurance is in not ascertained.

The woolen factory of Conwell & Sons, at Mexico, Missouri, and flouring, saw and carding mills at Platteburgh, Missouri, were burned last week, total loss $40,000. Considerable wool was burned at each place. Both fires were the work of incendiaries.

Fremont Ratification Meeting.

ST. LOUIS, Sunday, June 26, 1864.

The FREMONT ratification meeting last night was very respectable in point of numbers, and quite enthusiastic.

FIRE IN CENTREVILLE, N. J.—The dwelling-house and store of C. E. STOUT, and the hotel of Wm. N. HEAGLAND, at Centreville, N. J., were destroyed by fire on the evening of the 23d June. Mr. STOUT's loss is $15,000; insured for $4,000 in the Hilltsborough Mutual. Mr. HEAGLAND's loss probably $3,000. The fire originated from the using of a lighted candle in drawing benzine. The can exploded and severely burned the clerk, JOHN H. THOMPSON.

THE JULY MAGAZINES.

—The Atlantic Monthly (Boston, TICKNOR & FIELDS,) commences with the present number its fourteenth volume, and bears itself proudly, pointing with complacency to an unrivaled list of contributors as an earnest of what may be expected in continuance of the exertions hitherto so conclusively crowned with success. The first article that most readers will turn to is undoubtedly a chapter, by HAWTHORNE, of the romance that he had been for some time engaged in writing for the Atlantic. Resembling an English contemporary novelist, REACE, in the close attention to the details, there is a further similarity in the fact that the last work of both was for the magazines they had been connected with, and the readers of the Cornhill and the Atlantic have alike seen with sadness the last incomplete efforts of their creative minds. HAWTHORNE'S scene from the "Dolliver Romance"—a detached passage elaborated with the finish of a cabinet picture, strikes a chord of psychological research, which is now mute for a generation, at least. In the talk he had no strain, and the public would certainly not at present endure more indirect. "Glorying in the Good," by GAIL HAMILTON, is full of common sense, and must be taken as a corrective to the pictures of rural elysiums, that are generally the product of a city imagination. "Hazel," by RAVEN WALDO EMERSON, is supposedly readings in the translation of the principal work of last year, the "Gulistan, or Rose Garden," let some time announced as in preparation by Mr. EMERSON. Mr. WARNER continues his pleasant talks on "Farming and Country Affairs," with agricultural worthies of the last generation. "Meyerbeer," by FRANCIS WEMYSS, gives some new particulars of that great composer's last days. The poetry, it is enough to say, is contributed by LOWELL, BRIGGS, and Dr. O. W. HOLMES.

—Harper's New Monthly Magazine for July, seems to have a usual variety of articles to please the universal public. The second part of DICKENS' "Mutual Friend" introduces several new scenes and characters, all displaying traits such as no other writer of English fiction, though generally considered in a broader spirit of caricature than was admissible in "David Copperfield," and others of his earlier works. Little progress is yet made in unraveling the plot, which promises to be one of dangerous complexity. Mr. LOSSING continues his "Scenes in the War of 1812," by an account of the military operations of the contending parties on Lake Champlain and the New-England coast; though when he says that a large body of WELLINGTON'S veterans were sent to Canada "from the Garonne in Spain," both writer and proofreader were certainly napping. "The Fortunes of War," is one of the excellent series of articles by Dr. ROBERT TOMS, on the social characteristics of our own City that have a special coloring of their own, and are always favorites with the reading Harper. The title is to be taken literally, and the phrase relates to the strange tissue of misfortunes which is the lot of its new possessors. "Coal and Coal Mining," by Prof. HENRY D. ROGERS, an American scheme, translated to a foreign University—Glasgow—describes a newly invented method of machine mining that will probably revolutionize the present laborious and wasteful mode. "The United Work," by Miss BYNNER, and the third installment of TROLLOPE'S posthumous story, "Denis Duval," are the foreign articles of fiction. "Sketchings" is a miscellaneous well arranged paper on the wonders of the ocean as revealed by the deep sea lead. The Monthly Record of Current Events is a careful digest of public occurrences, relieved by the always readable humors of the "Editor's Chair" and "Drawer."

—The United States Service Magazine (New-York: C. B. RICHARDSON,) Number 6, presents us with a fine steel plate portrait of Gen. GRANT, accompanied, on good authority, to be taken from the only correct original. If certainly has more of the port and air of a hero than the usual stolid, stolid-looking heads that pass current as the "considerate presentment" of the man that now commands the united attention of us all. A candid and discriminating sketch of Gen. GRANT'S military career accompanies it, written by the editor, Prof. COZZENS. Singularly enough there is no literary article in the magazine relating to the present war, but the papers, frequently of great utility, are devoted to the discussion of general military topics. Prominent among them is "The Probable Influence of the New Military Element on our Social and National Character," by Capt. ALFRED SELLERS. The author's views are hopeful with regard to the future of the nation, and he ventures the probable strong infusion of a military spirit as a corrective for many evils, supposed to be inherent in a democracy. "Explosive Substitutes for Gunpowder," looks forward to a day, not far distant, when gun cotton, in some of its modifications, shall have superseded powder for all warlike uses. "On Saltpeter," by Mr. BOERN, of the United States Mint, deals more with the actualities of the present. "The Regeneration of Italy," and "The Military Power of Russia," by Lieut. Col. TOZER, are valuable contributions toward a proper understanding of modern European History. "Naval Staff Rank," from a distinguished naval correspondent, discusses some questions of high interest to the sister service. The Editors' Department and Official Intelligence, present the most trustworthy record of professional news. Altogether, the United Service Magazine, which with this number, completes its first volume, takes rank as a success, and deservedly so, and must tend to elevate the standard of the professions it represents.

The Continental Monthly, (New-York, JOHN F. TROW,) for July, offers a varied table, at which are represented Politics, Literature, Travel, Romance, etc. Mr. BRADY'S "Life Scenes" exposes some of American affairs not considered by a paper accounting to be a strong Democratic and Secession one, and deals with our countrymen in the seductive sciences." "James Fenimore Cooper on Secession and State Rights," exhibits the remarkable prescience of the novelist as to the events of the last three years. Sustained fiction is ably represented by a capital story, "The Insurrection Flower," by M. B. DUNN, is an account of a unique flower, native of the vegetable world. "The Seven Hundred Birthday of a German Capital," by Prof. ALPHEUS THE ROSES, relates pleasantly second fortieth deluge of Munich. Among the poetry is "Lookout Mountain," a spirited lyric by ALFRED B. STREET. "Life in a Blockhouse" gives a close to a little of the inefficiency of the Wilmington Blockade.

The American Monthly Knickerbocker, (New-York: JOHN ROBERTS,) commences a new series of the time-honored magazine, under the editorship of J. MORGAN ALLEN. It opens with an installment of the "Life of Gen. McClellan," by Hon. GEORGE S. HILLARD, about to be published by J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. This probably gives the key-note of the publication, as the tone of most of the articles, when there is opportunity for its display, is decidedly of the (so-called) conservative order. The articles are numerous and mostly on subjects of interest, as "Denmark, its History and Literature," "Russell and the Rebellion," "The Church and the Clergy," by the editor. The "Editor's Table" recalls to mind the days when that was the prominent feature of the old Knickerbocker.

A REPORTED VICTORY AT WAYNESBORO.—Dr. KNOX, Rebel, a Pittsburgh organization, has arrived at Wheeling via Beverly, having just left Gen. HUNTER'S army. Two of the members of the battery arrived in the city this morning. One of them, a Sergeant, says that when they left Staunton, HUNTER'S army had gone in the direction of Waynesboro to meet BRECKINRIDGE and McDowell JACKSON. The latter had somewhat marched around our army and succeeded in uniting his command with that of BRECKINRIDGE. This Sergeant moreover says that just on leaving Beverly, a scout, a courier, had arrived from Staunton, who said that Hunter had fought Jackson and Breckinridge forces, and had completely routed them, taking 1,500 prisoners. This, if true, is important, as it indicates that HUNTER is proceeding in the direction of Charlottesville and Gordonsville rather than of Lynchburgh. We can scarcely, however, think this news reliable, or Secretary STANTON would have first received and told it to the country. We give the report as it reaches us, for what it is worth.—Pittsburgh Chronicle, June 24.

AFFAIRS IN THE WEST.

The Democratic Convention—Election of Delegates—Sentiment—The Vote—Miscellaneous.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

CHICAGO, Monday, June 20, 1864.

Our Democratic friends have been in council at Springfield during the past week, and have appointed delegates to the National Convention, nominated candidates for Presidential electors, &c. The convention was composed of three or four kinds of Democracy, including shades intermediate between extreme Peace and War Democrats, rebel sympathizers and honest patriots. The peace element prevailed, however, as one of the orators at large in Dr. M. S. Davis, of this city, who, in a public speech some months ago, "thanked God that disease and battle were depleting our ranks to such an extent that the tyrant Lincoln would soon be powerless to wage war upon the rights and institutions of the South." But the convention proved themselves cowards, not daring to pass resolutions or declare for a candidate upon such a platform. That party is in a bad way which is reduced to such straits. It proves conclusively that its leaders are "at sea," and that, too, without oar, or rudder, at the mercy of the strongest wind that may blow. There are many who are for coalescing with the Cleveland Convention, and adopting its nominee for President, and the number is increasing; but I doubt whether there will be many votes cast at their National Convention for this project, if it is intendoned at all. Look for the nomination of McClellan without much difficulty.

The Fremont movement not fully to create even a ripple upon the surface of the political waters here. It was supposed that it would receive a strong support from the German population of Chicago, but I venture the prediction that if ever the ticket survives to the first Tuesday of November, it will not poll one hundred and fifty votes in our city. Fremont has sold himself cheap—hardly for a song. The magnificent platform adopted at Baltimore ought to satisfy every loyal man, and probably does. It will sweep the West.

There is but little doing in the State canvass yet. Our candidate for Governor is around among the people holding patriot meetings; but what with the busy season and the hot weather, canvassing will be an uphill business until Autumn. Some of the Congressional Districts are making their nominations. We expect to increase the Union delegation this Fall by at least four—leaving out some of the most pestilent Copperheads, and replacing them by men who will not gender to the interests of the rebellion. A majority of our present delegation do an insult to the patriotism of the State. It is a shame that our soldiers in the field are not allowed their rights of suffrage.

There has been great apprehension felt of late in regard to the crops throughout a large portion of the West. A few weeks ago, after corn in some sections was well up, there was frost for two or three nights, which, in some localities, did considerable injury. Since then there has been an almost uninterrupted drought—no rain having fallen in many places for over a month. It has been most severe, and the heaviest portrayal is Wisconsin and Iowa, and in the northern part of this State. Corn refused to grow, grass was blighted, wheat headed out prematurely, oats did not venture far out of the ground—in short, the general prospect has been gloomy. Indiana and Michigan also suffered to a greater or less extent; and a very short crop was reasonably looked for all over the Northwest. The southern part of this State, from a little south of the centre, does not appear to have been affected, and the promise of a good crop is reported to be excellent. On Saturday afternoon, however, dark, rainbearing clouds appeared to the north and west, and during the night copious, refreshing showers fell here, so much so that in the morning ground enough had moistened the surface. If this rain has prevailed over any considerable extent of the farming country, its mercy cannot be seriously underestimated. It would be especially unfortunate just at this time to have a failure of the great staples of the West, or a serious deficiency in the production. There is time for nearly everything to recover, much of it may be beyond the reach of favorable weather, but a spring crop, which is the great bulk of the product of Northern Illinois, Wisconsin and Iowa, will be vastly improved by a sufficiency of rain. Other spring grains, also, with favorable weather, will be an average yield; so that we do not despair yet of "enough and to spare."

The United States Circuit Court, sitting at Springfield, made a decision last week in favor of the constitutionality of the Conscript Law. Judges DAVIS (Circuit) and TREAT (District) were on the bench. The latter, who is an intense Democrat, delivered the opinion of the court. There were several cases depending upon this decision.

Military affairs are quiet. A few recruits are being received in the regular way, and there are some three or four regiments of the hundred day men in the State not fully organized. The Nineteenth Illinois Veteran regiment, when it went out, which was raised in Chicago, arrived home on Thursday evening, having served its full term of three years. It has not reenlisted. There are about 200 men left.

What about KALLANDIGHAM? Everybody here may be indignant that he has been permitted thus long to pollute the soil of a loyal State, and to defiance to the majesty of the Government.

Business matters are without material change. Grain gambling is as rampant still with us as gold gambling is with you. Last week the sales of wheat reported on Change amounted to 3,400,000 bushels. The entire receipts since the 1st of January are but 8,971,419 bushels—or about one day's sales more than a single week's "transactions." While the receipts at Chicago for the year amount to some 13,000,000 bushels, the sales at this rate will reach over 100,000,000! But last week was an extraordinary one; yet how does even a third of such transactions appear in the eyes of legitimate dealers. Prices have gone up materially, a result of both speculation and the prospective effect of the drouth. General business continues good. The receipts of internal revenue in this city for May were $639,266; since the 1st of January, $1,747,826. The number of deaths in the city, during that month, was 969—32 more than for May, 1863. The greatest mortality was from consumption, 40; small-pox, 36; measles, 36.

Public Sentiment in Texas.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, June 18, 1864.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

In your issue of the 6th inst. I read with much interest a letter from Texas, dated the 12th of April last, on the subject of the next Presidential election, and also an editorial article of your own, which that letter suggested.

I have been a citizen of Texas ever since the date of its annexation to the United States. Only a few months have elapsed since I left there, for the purpose mainly of escaping from a despotism which had become intolerable, and to avoid a forced service in arms against the Government of my country. My opportunities for knowing the history of this rebellion, so far as Texas is concerned, and the condition, sentiments and feelings of all classes of men there, have been most ample. With many of the most prominent loyal men, I have had a long personal acquaintance, and up to the time of my leaving, our interchange of thought and sentiment, upon all matters connected with the rebellion, had been frequent and intimate. Undertaking, as I do, to express their views in what I propose to say, I have thought it not improper to say this much of myself.

The author of the letter published by you is unknown to me. But this is a matter of no consequence. The important question is, does he represent truly the sentiment existing among the loyal and disloyal men of Texas, in reference to the probable reelection of Mr. LINCOLN? I have no hesitation in saying that he does. At the same time, too, I will take this occasion to say that, in my judgment, the views expressed by you in the editorial referred to, and which were suggested by that letter, are eminently wise and correct.

No greater misfortune could befall the cause of the Union, in my opinion, than the defeat of Mr. LINCOLN at the approaching election. Its effect would be particularly disastrous at the South. The rebels would exult over it as a perfect triumph. They would see in it the condemnation of the man whom they have denounced as being the "sum of all villainies," and whose mere election to the Presidency in 1860, was made by them the pretext for inaugurating civil war in their wicked efforts to destroy the Union. More than this, they will claim it to be, not only a condemnation of the man, but of the war policy of the Government, as asserted and carried out for more than a year past. In many ways will they deduce from it matter of hope, confidence and encouragement. And I am free to say it would afford them just grounds for all this. For no matter who might be elected in the place of Mr. LINCOLN; whether it be the nominee of the Cleveland, the Chicago, or any other Convention, and no matter how strongly he may be pledged by the platform on which he may stand to the prosecution of the war and the extinction of slavery, the question will still arise, why has Mr. LINCOLN been superseded? Answer this question as you may—attribute it to whatever cause you may think proper—still it would show that the people of the North were divided in sentiment; that some objected to the man, some to his Cabinet, and others to the policy and conduct of the war. The effect upon the South would be the same. The rebels would be cheered and encouraged; the loyal men depressed and rendered hopeless. Such will be the inevitable consequence. How could it be otherwise? As before said, his election was made the pretext for secession. This, the people were told, was a constitutional and peaceable remedy, which the States could exercise whenever they deemed their rights or liberties in danger. Mr. LINCOLN was represented as being the head and exponent of a party determined, not only to exclude slavery from the territories, but to destroy it in the States. Finally, they attacked Fort Sumter, and then charged Mr. LINCOLN with being the author of the war. Southern preachers in the pulpit, and traitor demagogues on the stump, have constantly inculcated that it was a wicked and unholy war, forced upon the South by the Lincoln Government, as they called it.

It is well known to everybody, that for more than a year after the war was begun, Mr. LINCOLN endeavored to carry it on so as to reestablish the Union, without harming slavery. But, as the contest progressed, he found that it was being used, in every possible way, in aid of the rebellion. Through its employment, resources were provided, fortifications erected, and crops planted and raised for the support of the rebel armies. Nothing prevented a large portion of the slaves from being armed and converted into soldiers by the South, but a conviction that they could not be trusted to fight on that side.

Finding that Slavery was thus placed in direct antagonism to the Government, and that the suppression of the rebellion required its overthrow, he finally issued his emancipation proclamation. It had become evident, however, long before this, that the destruction of Slavery would be an unavoidable and necessary incident of the war itself, and the Proclamation can only be regarded as giving an official assurance to this foregone conclusion. Its extinction cannot, therefore, be attributed to Mr. LINCOLN, but to the war which the South inaugurated for its deification.

The Christian religion was once disowned, and the Goddess of Reason enthroned and worshiped in its stead, by one of the most enlightened nations of Europe. We see, to-day, an attempt made among ourselves but little less sacrilegious—an effort to break up a Government whose very life was the spirit of Freedom, and to substitute another enthroned upon Slavery as a "divine institution." ROBESPIERRE'S history has been written. That of JEFF. DAVIS soon will be, and after ages will be puzzled to say which of the two fills the darkest page.

But the leaders of the rebellion at once seized upon this Proclamation, and exultingly pointed to it as positive proof of their assertion, made prior to secession, that Mr. LINCOLN intended to destroy Slavery. They said to the Union men, and to their lukewarm followers—"Did we not tell you from the beginning, that it was the intention of LINCOLN to break down Slavery? Don't you see we acted wisely, and did not move too early, in taking the course we have? He has at length thrown off the mask," &c.

Flimsy as this reasoning was to every decided and reflecting Union man, it had the desired effect upon all who were doubtful or wavering.

In this way has Mr. LINCOLN been made to appear to the Southern mind (or to the disloyal portion of it,) as the author not only of the war as against them, but against Slavery. He is to them the very soul and embodiment of the war, with all its unavoidable and necessary incidents. They have constantly inculcated this idea, and false though it be, in point of fact, it should be accepted and acted upon as true by the loyal men of the United States. A war made to subvert the Union, on account of the legal and constitutional election of any man as President, is a war against the sovereignty of the American people. Their will was expressed in the election of Mr. LINCOLN, and inasmuch as this war made the pretext for the rebellion, he ought to be retained in office until it is put down. Justice to the man requires that this should be done. More than this, a great principle of popular government will be vindicated by compelling obedience to the will of the people as represented in his election, and which has been set at defiance and rebelled against by a minority. I, therefore, assert it, as my own sentiment, and that of a large majority of Southern Union men, that Mr. LINCOLN should be reelected. In his person was the authority of the American people rebelled against, and in his person should it be maintained and vindicated unless, indeed, there exist the most cogent reasons why he should be put aside for a new man. If any such exist, I have not heard them, or have been unable to appreciate them. Almost every one that I have conversed with, among his political opponents, accord to him honesty and patriotism, however much they may object to him for other reasons. In my estimation this concedes the whole ground, as respects his fitness for the office and the propriety of his reelection.

One of the most common objections made to Mr. LINCOLN by a certain party in the Free States is based upon the policy and supposed effect of his Emancipation Proclamation. They profess to be in favor of carrying on the war rigorously until the rebellion is put down, but to leave the institution of Slavery where it was under the Constitution. Their formula of faith is a restoration of "the Union as it was, and the Constitution as it is." Now, to do this, so far as Slavery is concerned, is wholly and utterly impracticable. To suppose otherwise is the most delusive fallacy that ever got possession of the mind of man. The Union and Slavery did exist together, but they can do so no longer. They can no more unite together again than can oil and water. The war has, as a necessary consequence, made them utterly antagonistic and irreconcilable, and one or the other must perish. If Slavery is to be sustained it can only be done by an abandonment of the war on the part of the United States Government, and a recognition of the South as an independent Confederacy. So well satisfied of this are Southern Union men that I do not know a slaveholder among them who does not now look upon the institution as virtually dead, and who is not willing, under the circumstances, that it should be so. You for [illegible] they do, that our nationality [illegible] is worth far more than all the negroes in it, they cheerfully acquiesce in the necessity which requires their freedom. They, at least, are willing to make a sacrifice of all their interest in Slavery upon the altar of their country. Why cannot the Northern opposition to Mr. LINCOLN, who don't care any negroes, be equally as patriotic? May not hostility toward the Administration, or sympathy with the rebellion, have something to do with it?

I have thus hastily, but I believe truly, presented the views entertained by the loyal men of the South in reference to the next Presidential election. They would deprecate the defeat of Mr. LINCOLN, not because he is any special favorite of theirs, but mainly because it will show a divided sentiment at the North. To-day the mind of rebeldom is being turned by its leaders, to what are said to be unmistakable proofs of a want of unity among the people of the loyal States, and especially of hostility to Mr. LINCOLN. As evidences of this they point to the action of the Cleveland Convention, the hoped-for action of the Chicago Convention, the doctrines promulgated by all parties hostile to the present Administration, the triumphant return and bravado of VALLANDIGHAM, &c., &c., and to the support which partisan newspaper presses are lending to these different political demonstrations.

The rebels are taught to believe that all this is very encouraging, and that if they will only hold out until the next Presidential election their triumph will then come in the downfall of the hated "Lincoln Government:"—that very Government against which they have been fighting for the last three years.

The hopes thus engendered naturally inspire them with fresh courage, and at this very moment are giving them more heart and strength than anything else. This effect is not realized as true at the North, or if so, its importance is not appreciated as it should be. If it were, I cannot but think that the party strife, the petty ambitions and jealousies of the hour, which furnish a foundation for these rebel hopes, would give place to higher and nobler feelings, during the present crisis of our national life.

I had intended to say something of the Baltimore resolutions, upon which Mr. LINCOLN now stands, and to show the sufficiency of these resolutions to meet every demand, both of patriotism and policy, which the results of this war have shown to be necessary. I wished also to show that if he had never stood square and fair before, he does now, and that every loyal and true American who may have conscientiously opposed him heretofore, on the score of his policy, can now stand on that same platform with him. And, finally, I intended to show how truly justice and sound policy had concurred in the nomination of ANDREW JOHNSON, of Tennessee, as Vice-President. That a loyal Southerner should have been selected for this position is a convincing proof of the patriotism of the men who met in convention at Baltimore. It is a guaranty to the Unionists of the South that they at least are recognized as equals in all respects by the Unionists of the North, and falsifies the common assertion of the rebel leaders that it was the intention of the "Lincoln Government" to subjugate and enslave them, as well as the rebels. But this article has already been extended beyond the length assigned, and, therefore, I forbear.

Perhaps it may be thought that I have already said too much. That an exile from the far South, separated from his home and family, receiving the sympathy and kindness of his Northern fellow-citizens, and having no vote probably in the approaching election, should write anything to influence the public mind here upon that subject, may be regarded as indelicate and presumptuous by some. If so, they will be unmindful of the fact that one American citizen has the same interest in the fortunes of the Republic as another. My purpose in writing at all has been to bear testimony to the truth of the views and sentiments put forth in the letter and editorial referred to in the beginning of this communication. If, in doing this, and in stating facts and conclusions, as impressed upon the minds of loyal Southern men, the cause of truth and the Union will in any way be aided, then all that I had hoped to do will have been accomplished.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Death of "Tom Hyer."

Coroner HAUMANN was, yesterday, called upon to hold an inquest on the body of THOMAS HYER, a man well known in this community, and especially in sporting circles for many years, as "TOM HYER." Deceased had been complaining for several years, but as a general thing he has not been confined to his house. On Saturday he was out, and returned to his residence, No. 152 East Twenty-fifth-street, between 1st and A o'clock yesterday morning. He came in a light wagon, accompanied by a friend, and remained on the sofa about fifteen minutes, when he complained of illness and asked for ice water, which was furnished. Soon after he was taken to bed and continued to grow worse, breathing with the utmost difficulty, and with great difficulty until 1:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when he expired. Dr. THOMAS REMMONS made a post-mortem examination of the body. He found the heart very large and fatty, and the pericardium filled and distended with serum. The liver was also very much diseased, and the whole structure of it entirely degenerated into a scirrhous mass. The spleen was enormously large, measuring 10½ inches in length, 4 inches in width and weighed several pounds. The doctor was of the opinion that the immediate cause of death was cardiac dropsy. Deceased was 53 years of age, and a native of New-York.

Action of the Authorities in Regard to Small Pox.

An unusual number of vessels are arriving at this port, having small pox and ship fever on board. They are mostly from England and Ireland. On Friday, Dr. GRINNELL, Health Officer, quarantined an English vessel having twenty-two cases on board. The most effective measures are taken by him to prevent the introduction of these diseases, and every vessel which is known to have had a case on board during the voyage is detained and quarantined until all danger from it is passed. The sick are sent to Blackwell's Island; the well are detained on the vessels, are vaccinated when there has been small pox, the vaccination proven, &c., where failing the persons revaccinated. The clothing on board is cleansed, and the vessel thoroughly cleansed and fumigated.

Forty-eight hours is sufficient to render the vessel perfectly safe, but the time that it is necessary to detain her will be fourteen days. As matters are now, there being no place at which to land and accommodate passengers, the consequent and, but for this, unnecessary delay of vessels is from three to twelve days—a very serious matter to the owners. In order to obviate this, a meeting of the Board of Commissioners of Health, Commissioners of Quarantine, Commissioners of Emigration and the Senators from New-York, Kings and Richmond Counties, will be held at the Mayor's office, next Wednesday, for the purpose of determining upon some place at which to land the passengers and some way in which they shall be provided for.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.—WM. TODD, who was run over at the corner of West and West Tenth streets, on the 19th inst., by one of the cars of the Hudson Railroad, died at his residence, No. 187 West Twenty-fifth-street, yesterday. Deceased was riding on the front platform of the car, when he jumped off to get a pipe that he had dropped. The wheels passed over both his legs, and otherwise injured him seriously. No blame attaches to the driver by the Coroner's jury. Deceased was an Englishman, aged 30 years.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

BRUTAL OUTRAGE ON A WOMAN.—A young man, who gave his name as JAMES CONNOLLY, was arraigned yesterday before Justice LEWIS, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, on the charge of having, in company with another man, whose name is unknown, brutally beaten and afterward violated the person of RACHEL WALKER, who is the complainant in the case. The latter testified that she is a resident of New-Brighton, Staten Island; that on Saturday afternoon she came up to the City for the purpose of finding a relative of hers named JAMES WALKER, who she was told lived in the vicinity of Second-avenue and Twenty-second-street; that she was a stranger in the City and searched until after dark before she found the street above mentioned. On the corner she saw the prisoner CONNOLLY, and asked him if he could direct her to the house of JAS. WALKER. He at first replied no; but immediately after changed his mind, and CONNOLLY spoke a few words to him aside, and then prisoner said to Barnes that if she would go with the other man he would put her in the way of finding the person she sought. Complainant suspected nothing wrong, and never having been either of them before, she went with the strangers several doors from the corner to a house in Twenty-second-street. They ascended a dark hallway and proceeded upstairs to a room, the door of which was unlocked by her conductor, and she was suddenly and rudely thrust into a dark room. Complainant became frightened at this, and felt confident that she was being foully dealt with. She began to scream as loud as possible, when a hand was quickly thrust over her mouth and she was told that if she made any more noise, would be at the peril of her life. The man continued to hold her down, and did all he could to violate her person. In the struggle her clothes were nearly torn from her person, and she was struck several times by the man in order to keep her still. After a time the prisoner CONNOLLY made his appearance in the room, and he also assaulted her, striking her in the jaw with his fist because she would not comply with his demands. The latter finally lighted a lantern which he had brought with him, and after several gross insults had been offered to her by the men, they both deserted the room and left her there in the dark. As soon as possible, after they had gone, she got out of the building, and finally found her way to the Eighteenth Precinct Station-house, where she told her story, and described the prisoner CONNOLLY so accurately that Officer HUTCHINSON was able soon after to effect his arrest. The other villain has not been secured. Justice LEWIS committed CONNOLLY for trial in default of $1,000 bail. The prisoner says he is a native of this City, aged 27 years, resides at No. 349 Second-avenue, that he by occupation a wire-drawer.

FIRE IN ANN-STREET.—At a late hour on Saturday afternoon a fire broke out on the roof of the building No. 10 Ann-street, occupied by A. S. DE VERVENNE. The flames rapidly spread among the roofs of Nos. 10, 12, 14 and 16, all of which were more or less damaged before the fire could be got under control. The roofs were of wood, and very dry, owing to the drought, in spite of the efforts of the firemen. Mr. DE VERVENNE'S loss will be about $700; insured for $500 in the New-Amsterdam Insurance Company. No. 12 was occupied by Mrs. G. W. YOUNGS, as a boarding house; loss about $600; insured for $700, in the Peter Cooper Insurance Company. No. 14 was occupied by Mr. ABRAHAM GAW, furniture damaged about $300; insured in the Lorillard Insurance Company. Mr. GAW also owns buildings Nos. 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. They are damaged to the extent of about $3,500; insured for $7,500, in the Knickerbocker Insurance Company. No. 16 was occupied by Miss ADAMS; furniture damaged about $400, by water; fully insured in the Jefferson Insurance Company. The building belongs to the estate of Henry Mason. It is damaged about $500; fully insured in the Jefferson Insurance Company. No. 18 was occupied by JAMES E. GETMAN; furniture damaged by water about $100; no insurance. The building is owned by Mr. MCCARDER. It is damaged about $300; insured.

FIRE IN WEST-STREET.—A WOMAN SMOTHERED BURNED.—Late on Saturday night a fire occurred in the attic of a frame building rear of No. 204 West-street, in the premises of PETER SULLIVAN. The fire was caused by an old woman, named JOHN ROAFE, aged 90 years, accidentally setting fire to her bed with a candle. She was rescued by CHAS. GRAHAM, very badly and probably fatally burned. She was taken to the New-York Hospital. The flames extended into the yard of the ship chandlery store, No. 206, owned by ABAHAM VAN WICKLE, and before the firemen extinguished the fire the stock was damaged to the extent of from $5,000 to $6,000; fully insured. Mr. SULLIVAN'S loss will be about $400; no insurance. The first floor of No. 204 is used by H. B. THOMAS for storage of lumber; damage about $150; insured. The butter-shop of CHARLES A. TURNER, No. 49 Harrison-street, was damaged by water about $100.

CASES OF SUNSTROKE.—MARY WALSH, a widow, aged 50 years, was found lying on the stoop of No. 209 Henry-street, prostrated by the heat and nearly insensible. She was taken to Believue Hospital. DENNIS MURRAY, of No. 141 East Fifty-third-street, while at work in South-street, was overcome by the heat. The Police took him to his home. An unknown man was found insensible in Twentieth-street, near First-avenue. Sent to Believue Hospital. He was about 45 years of age, dressed in black, snuff colored sack coat, light vest, check shirt and heavy boots. Has side whiskers and gray hair. The following persons were found in the streets by the Eighteenth Precinct Police, suffering from a sunstroke: TERENCE BELLEVUE Hospital. MRS. LOUISA WITMANS, residing in Newark, N. J., was found prostrated on the dock at the foot of Chambers-street. Taken to New-York Hospital.

FIRE IN A TYPE FOUNDRY.—On Saturday night, a fire broke out on the third floor of No. 85 Vesey-street, in premises occupied by C. TURNER as a type foundry and dwelling. The upper floors and roof were entirely consumed. Mr. TURNER'S loss will be about $1,000; supposed to be insured. The first floor occupied by S. B. ADAMS as a liquor store; damage by water about $300; insured for $2,000 in the Hamilton and Citizen's Insurance Companies. The building belongs to the estate of William H. CARRY. It is damaged about $6,000; insured. There was some slight damage done by water to the occupants of No. 83. The origin of the fire is unknown at present.

SUICIDE BY POISON.—An inquest was held yesterday by Coroner HARNER on the body of JAMES MCGRATH, who died from the effects of poison administered by himself. He had been drinking to excess for several days previous, and it is supposed that during a temporary aberration of mind he swallowed a quantity of Paris Green, which had been purchased for the purpose of destroying insects in his house. His wife was present at the time, but all her efforts to arrest the suicidal hand were fruitless. Deceased was a native of Ireland, aged 45 years.

FIRE IN WILLIAM-STREET.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning a fire occurred in the basement of No. 179 William-street, occupied by JOHN SCHOU as a lager-bier saloon. Schou's loss is about $100; fully insured. The loss of H. B. HARTSHORN, cigar dealer, who occupied the room over the saloon, is about $100; insured in the Firemen's Insurance Company. The origin of the fire is unknown.

DEATH OF GENERAL COLLEY'S SON.—EDWARD M. COLLIN, eldest son of Colonel COLLIN, died on Saturday at the residence in Fifty-ninth-street. His disease was consumption. For some time prior to his illness he held an important position in the New-York Post-office. He was a native of this City, 32 years of age, and has left a wife and one child.

FIRE ON THE DOCK.—About 12 o'clock yesterday a fire broke out among some bales of hay, stored on the dock at the foot of Broome-street, E. R. Before the flames could be extinguished, hay, owned by Messrs. Stimson & Wood, and a Mr. WARNER, valued at $400, was destroyed. No insurance. The fire is believed to be the work of an incendiary.

MONDAY, June 27—6 P. M.

The Import and Export returns of the past week are both very large. Most of the Import entries pass into Bonds, to await a better market and the adjustment of the Tariff. The 50 ₩ cent. extra Duties on the Tariff of 1862, enacted and approved by the President on the 29th April for the period of sixty days, will expire to-morrow, 28th June. The New Tariff, as it now stands in Congress, is to take effect on Friday, July 1. It appears, therefore, to be an open question whether or not entries for Consumption, direct and by withdrawal from Bond, can be made through the intervening three days at the old rates, free of the extra 50 ₩ cent. We have no official information yet on the subject. Some of our Opposition cotemporaries sugg

LEATHER—The week's business in this line, Messrs. H. D. Hurd & Co., notice thus: Hemlock Sole continues in active demand from manufacturers and dealers at full and improving prices. The rapid advance in Gold during the week has had a tendency to unsettle the market, and the trade are holding off, the sellers are therefore asking considerably advanced rates. We increase our quotations fully 5c. on all kinds, but sales have been made late in the week above our outside figures. The market closes strong, with an upward tendency. From the tanneries the receipts are fair, about equal to the sales, and the stock on hand at the close of the week is moderate only. Oak Tanned is not so eagerly sought for as Hemlock, and with a fair supply prices are unaltered. Upper is the rough continued in small request, and the stock is accumulating.

We quote: Sole Oak Slaughter and Ballad, first quality, 50c.@55c.; Oak Slaughter and Ballad, middle, 50c.@55c.; Oak Slaughter and Ballad, light, 50c.@55c.; Oak Slaughter and Ballad, heavy, 50c.@55c.; Oak light crop, good, 45c.@50c.; Oak middle crop, good, 45c.@50c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good light, 32c.@35c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good middle, 35c.@38c.; Hemlock, Buenos Ayres, &c., good heavy, 38c.@40c.; Hemlock, California, good light, 37c.@38c.; Hemlock, California, good middle, 38c.@39c.; Hemlock, California, good heavy, 39c.@39½c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good light, 37c.@37½c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good middle, 37½c.@38c.; Hemlock, Orinoco, &c., good heavy, 38c.@37c.; Hemlock, Orinoco and Buenos Ayres, damaged, all weights, 34c.@36c.; Hemlock, Orinoco and Buenos Ayres, poor, all weights, 30c.@32c.; Hemlock, Slaughter, in rough, 30c.@40c.; Oak Slaughter, in rough, 40c.@45c. cash ⅌ lb. Wood's receipts of sole, 47,000 sides.

NAVAL STORES—Are retailing at uniform prices, including Spirits Turpentine, at $3@$3 05 ⅌ gallon. Tar at $14@$17 ⅌ bbl. Rosin at $3@$4 ⅌ 280 lbs.

OILS—Are in request at our quotations. Crude Whale at $1 23@$1 25. Crude Sperm at $1 05@$1 10; Bleached Winter Whale at $1 25@$1 40; Unbleached Sperm at $2@$2 10; Linseed at $1 55@$1 60; No. 1 Lard at $1 30@$1 35. Crude Petroleum 40c.@45c.; Refined Petroleum at 60c.@65c., free, and 70c.@71c., in bond, ⅌ gallon.

PROVISIONS—Pork has been in active request, chiefly on speculation, at firmer prices, closing, however, less buoyantly. Sales since our last 11,600 bbls., in lots, at $40 75@$41 for New Mess, regular delivery; $43 25@$43 50 for do., July delivery, buyer's option; $37 50@$38 50 for Old Mess, and $40 50 for July delivery, $38 50@$39 50 for Prime Mess, $40 50 for do., July delivery and $44 for August; $38@$38 50 for Thin Mess, and $33@$34 50 for Prime ⅌ bbl. Cut Meats continue in good demand, at 10c.@12½c. for Hams, and 11c.@14c. for Shoulders, ⅌ lb.; sales 500 pieces. Bacon is quiet, at 12c. for clearing, in quality. ⅌ lb. Lard has been in less request and heavy to-day; sales since our last, 3,150 tcs. and bbls. for immediate and future delivery, at 10½c.@10c. ⅌ lb. Beef continues in demand at buoyant prices; sales 320 bbls. at $17@$20 for Mess; $23@$25 for Plain Mess; $15@$17 50 for Country Mess, ⅌ bbl. Prime Mess $30@$31 ⅌ tc. Beef Hams $32@$39 50 ⅌ bbl. Butter continues in fair demand at 30c.@40c. for poor to prime, and 40c.@42c. for very choice State; 30c.@35c. for common to choice Western ⅌ lb. Cheese continues salable and buoyant at 12c.@19c. ⅌ lb.

SKINS—Goat are in active demand, for manufacturing at rates to which holders refuse to respond. Most of the stock in first hands is held withdrawn from the market, the fluctuating rates for Gold making it impossible to name a currency price. A few small sales were made early in the week at full figures, but since we hear of no transactions. For Deer: demolition thereof is so full inquiry from manufacturers and dealers, but operations are limited, owing to the extreme prices demanded by holders.

WHISKY—Sales have been reported since our last of 10,850 bbls., in lots, at $1 75@$1 83, chiefly at $1 78@$1 80, closing irregularly, ⅌ gallon.

FREIGHTS—Engagements for Liverpool, to-day, included 200 bbls. Flour at 10½d., 64,000 bush. Wheat at 8¾d@9d., and 190 tcs. Lard at 35s. For London—1,200 bbls. Flour at 1s. 9d. For Bristol—30 tons Heavy Goods at 17s. 6d. For Cork and orders, three freight vessels with Wheat, 161,000 bushels, all told, at 8d. 4½d. 9d. 6d. For Havre—300 tcs. Lard, and 400 noons Sugar at 60 francs. For Antwerp—175 hhds. Tallow, at 25s.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

The news from the Army of the Potomac this morning presents no new feature of striking interest. We have additional particulars from two of our correspondents respecting the losses of Wednesday; and we have also the report that on Friday morning LONGSTREET and A. P. HILL commenced moving toward Weldon, having vacated their intrenchments in our immediate front. On Friday the batteries of the Eighteenth, portions of the Fifth and Second Corps, commenced firing upon the town of Petersburgh, with what result had not been ascertained. The Petersburgh and Weldon Railroad has also been under our guns for several days—a circumstance which, taken in connection with the sudden wheeling round of LEE's forces in the direction of our extreme left south of Petersburgh, indicates that LEE means to fight for the maintenance of his southern lines with the whole force at his command. In the direction of Weldon we must look for the early occurrence of a stupendous engagement.

In Georgia our army has for the past nine days been steadily engaged with the enemy. We publish in another column a very interesting account, from our special correspondent, of all the battles up to the 3d inst. Accounts furnished by spies and others, state that the rebels are making every possible preparation to hold Atlanta; as their last hope they will probably fight desperately to defend it. Gen. SHERMAN has, however, so arranged his army as to feel confident of victory, and the men, though almost worn out with hard fighting, are in the best of spirits, and anxious to end the matter now.

We have interesting news this morning from Charleston. Our correspondent gives the official details of the barbarous expedient resorted to by the rebels, in putting fifty of our officers under fire in the city, for the purpose of moving the place from the fire of our guns. We also publish the names of the officers who are made the victims of this barbarous mode of conducting warfare.

GENERAL NEWS.

The Inman steamship City of Manchester arrived at this port yesterday. Her latest dates are to the 9th, via Queenstown, and her news is anticipated. The steamer City of Cork, of the same line, also arrived yesterday. We have some later items by this arrival, taken from papers of the 13th.

By the arrival of the Ariel from Aspinwall on the 17th, we have some items of news from Central America. From the Pacific Coast there is a report of the doings of the French at Acapulco, and the retirement of the Mexicans therefrom at the point of the bayonet.

The brig Vision, the smallest craft that ever attempted to cross the ocean, sailed yesterday for Liverpool. The dimensions of the vessel are: length of keel, 15 feet; breadth of beam, 4 feet 6 inches; depth of hold, 2 feet 4 inches.

Mr. JOSEPH A. SCOVILLE, who has earned an enviable notoriety by his letters from New-York to the London Herald, under the signature of "Manhattan," died at the Brandreth House in this City, on Saturday morning, of congestion of the bowels, at the age of fifty years.

TOM HYER, well-known in sporting circles for many years past, died suddenly at his residence in East Thirty-fifth-street, at an early hour yesterday morning. He was 45 years of age, and a native of this State. Coroner NAUMANN held an inquest on the body, and the jury returned a verdict that deceased died of "cardiac dropsy."

A letter from Dr. BARCOCK, one of the agents of this State for the care of sick and wounded New-York soldiers, dated Washington, says: "Furloughs cannot be extended. In order to protect a soldier from the charge of desertion, they must forward a certificate that they are unable to travel without injury, which must be signed by a United States medical officer, or by a physician in civil life which must be sworn to."

The Stock market was better on Saturday. Money active, but no great pressure from borrowers. Gold 212@215 until late in the day, when it stood 217@220.

Business in Flour and Wheat was less animated on Saturday, though prices favored buyers decidedly. Corn was saleable and steady. Oats, Whisky and the principal kinds of Provisions were in lively demand, partly on speculation, at buoyant prices. Transactions in most other articles were restricted. There were 631 vessels of all classes in port.

WHAT OUR SOLDIERS NEED.—The great danger of our soldiers before Richmond just now is scurvy. They have an abundance of meat, but lack vegetables, and the effect of such diet both at sea or on land, with salt meat or fresh, is to engender scurvy. In many quarters special efforts are made to send them vegetables, and this ought to be the case everywhere. Onions, particularly, are known to be of the utmost value, yet none are to be had under present circumstances.

Why will not our Common Council appropriate the money usually devoted to banquets and fireworks for the Fourth of July to this beneficent purpose? There is not a man, woman or child in this City who would not rather know that the public money was thus used to promote the health and comfort of our brave soldiers, than to gaze upon the usual brilliant display of fireworks next week. No measure would be more sure of universal approbation or be more certain of doing an immense amount of good. We hope this matter will at once be presented for the consideration and action of our Common Council.

The War a War Against General Disorganization.

—"I am tired of working for Yankee task-masters. I hate their selfish measures; and therefore I am in favor of a Western Confederacy." So says MARSHAL ANDERSON, of Ohio, in a letter declining the nomination, by the Democratic State Convention, of Presidential Elector. Mr. ANDERSON, we suppose, is not a lunatic. The Columbus Crisis, which is good "Democratic" authority, remarked of him that "a more worthy gentleman or better Democrat could not have been chosen;" and the Daily News, of this City, republishes his missive under the caption, "A Sound Letter." Whether sound or not, it is certainly frank, and therein to be commended.

Of all the manifold arguments against letting the "seceded" States go, the most decisive by all odds, is the moral certainty that it would open the way to other secessions sooner or later. As far as regards the loss of so much territory, it is a matter of only secondary consequence. Give to JEFF. DAVIS and his crew all that they claim, and we should yet have left stretching through the temperate zone, between the Alantic and Pacific, one of the most magnificent fields for national empire the sun shines upon—a field naturally capable of supporting hundreds of millions of freemen in prosperity and highest civilization. We should have it left, but the vital misfortune is that it would be left only soon to be broken up by new civil convulsions. Acknowledge the "Southern Confederacy" to-day, and unless human nature shall change, five years will not pass before there will be a movement for a "Western Confederacy," a "Pacific Confederacy," and heaven only knows how many other confederacies.

The real issue in this struggle is not whether the Republic is to exist on a larger or a smaller scale, but whether it is to exist at all. That which gives the struggle its transcendent moment is, not that the nation is threatened with the loss of certain of its members, but that its very vital force is in peril. The rebellion strikes at just authority; and without authority, government is but an intermittent revolution, and the so-called nation but an organized mob. To give way to the present secession movement is to loosen every national ligament, and to put our body politic throughout at the mercy, henceforth, of every wild passion and every sordid calculation. We are literally battling for the nation's life. It is a sort of war that hardly occurs once in a thousand years. Wars generally are maintained to vindicate national rights abroad, or to overthrow or reform national rule at home. Whether they do or do not succeed the nation still lives. They are sometimes waged, as by our Revolutionary fathers, and lately by the Italian patriots, for independence, and an opportunity to originate a new nationality. But in our case it is to save a nationality already existent and strong. With the comparatively small exception of Poland, there has not been a case like it in modern times. And who can calculate a nation's value? The creation of one is the grandest and most difficult of all human achievements. There is not one, even the poorest, that has not cost unmeasured blood and toil—hardly one worthy of the name that has not required generations and centuries for even an imperfect development. A well-knit national organization, with all its vital powers in full health and force, is infinitely the most precious of all earthly possessions. Its preservation is the most sacred trust that one generation can possibly devolve on another. To betray that trust, either by positive act or by default, is to commit an inexpiable wrong both against ancestors and posterity.

It is precisely this crime that we are asked to commit, by those who ask an abandonment of this war. To cease resistance to the demands of the Secessionists is to inaugurate endless revolution. The vital cord of the Union once broken, all that follows will be, but the endless shifting of independent atoms swayed only by passion or caprice or temporary interest.

This idea of a Western Confederacy is no new thing. It was a notion that took very definite shape in that dark period that followed the election of Gov. SEYMOUR and our direful military reverses in Virginia. It was the real impelling motive of the crusade against New-England entered upon by very many of the Copperhead writers and orators at that crisis, and kept up until the great successes at Vicksburgh and Gettysburgh gave hope of a speedy triumph of the national cause, and made any further show of this spirit insufferably odious to the people. Just as sure as new calamities should overtake us, and the popular heart again be weighed down by despondency, we shall see a renewal of these assaults. And were the rebel armies actually to carry the day, and force a recognition of the "Confederacy," the questions whether the remaining States should exist together or apart, and if apart, whether individually or in groups, would at once assume the most formidable proportions. Visionary theorists, malignant malcontents, men lusting for power, men goaded by hate, men whose natural work is destruction, would drive these questions incessantly; and even if the States should still hold together, it would be in such a condition of insecurity, of uncertainty about the future, as to paralyze every energy and make anything like a healthful national growth impossible.

It would be the experience of the South American republics repeated. No nation can prosper without a sense of security, a moral assurance of stability and permanence. We give that up forever, if we recognize secession, either in principle or in fact. We have done well to make mortal fight on this thing at the outset. It was issue of life or death to all stable civil government on this continent. It must be maintained to the end at whatever cost in treasure and blood. We cannot yield without entailing untold woes upon ourselves and our posterity.

A British American Confederacy.

A Quebec correspondent, whose letter we publish in other columns to-day, gives some particulars supplemental of the telegraphic report, as to the political movements at the Canadian seat of Government. These movements—if we are to suppose the actors sincere—are not without interest to the outside world. The faction fights which had brought the Province almost to the verge of anarchy culminated some two weeks ago in the defeat of the Tory Ministry. The latter proposed to appeal from the House of Assembly to the country. But Gov. MONCK, although obliged according to constitutional usage to permit the appeal asked for by his advisers, appears to have urged his Council to make some attempt at cabinet reconstruction before going to the polls. He seems to have feared that a general election would supply no remedy for the sectional antagonism which practically threatened to make common legislation for the Gallic and Anglo-Canadian divisions of the colony impossible. Lord MONCK, doubtless acting according to secret instructions from Downing-street, and under the inspiring influence of the Lombard-street creditors of the Province, is understood to have strongly urged his Ministers to invite a coalition of parties, by making room in the Executive Council for several of the more violent and dangerous members of the Opposition; and he seems indeed to have employed the strongest kind of indirect influence to accomplish his purpose.

The immediate ground of the sectional trouble which has brought things to this pass in the colony, is the inequitable character of the representation accorded to the more populous Province in the common Legislature. When the two colonies of Upper and Lower Canada were first united by Lord SYDENHAM in 1840, equality of representation was expressly stipulated for in the Charter—Lower Canada being then the more populous of the two. The quasi federal character of the compact was further maintained by the employment of the French as well as the English language in all official documents, both Parliamentary and Executive. And the same principle of duality has been observed in choosing an equal number of Crown Ministers from each section of the Province, and in the maintenance of two sets of Attorney and Solicitor Generals, and two entirely distinct systems of judicature and judicial officers. In spite of these compromises on the sectional differences between the Gallic and English portions of the country, the union compact of 1840 has not, from the first, been found to work harmoniously, as we may remember by looking back to the rebellion losses insurrection of '49, and to the powerful agitation which then sprang up among the English population in favor of annexation to the United States.

In the earlier years of the Union, it had the advantage of being worked by a class of public men altogether superior, socially, intellectually and otherwise, to those who have more recently come to the surface, and by means of a succession of compromises, they succeeded in postponing a complete and final rupture. But of late years, the Western Province has so far outstripped the East (having now an excess of population of about four hundred thousand, with no increase of representation) that even a much abler and judicious set of political managers than the present would have found it difficult, if not impossible, to stave off the crisis much longer. That crisis has come, and the approaching dissolution of the union of 1840 is officially announced. Instead of a quasi federal union, such as we have described, there is to be a new confederation, which shall give to each Province a separate Legislature, for the management of purely local matters; a federal legislative body, being created for regulating the more general business of the country, such as the tariff, the canals, the common public debt (about $75,000,000) already created, the inland post-office, the ocean mail service, and (we presume) the volunteer system already established. This proposed confederation, it is intended, with the assent of the communities concerned, to extend so as to include the maritime colonies of New-Brunswick, Nova-Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Newfoundland, all of which have already taken an initiatory step toward creating a federative union among themselves.

It concerns us not a little to know what are the prospects of an arrangement which proposes ultimately to embrace the government of half the continent where we live; for the new confederacy is to be sufficiently expansive in its organization to take in, as events may develop themselves, the whole of the vast territories of the northwest, from the Red River to the Pacific. The project altogether, in its scope and aims, is one demanding the best intellects that can be found to deal with it; and, for this reason, we should be disposed to doubt whether we are going to witness its accomplishment as soon as the more sanguine of the colonists themselves imagine. Lord MONCK has got a coalition government to advise him. He has brought into his Cabinet men of the most antagonistic social and political attributes. He has secured for the moment, the indorsation of a large parliamentary majority for the new federative scheme, and as he is about to prorogue the House, he will have ample time in the recess to consult his ministers on the basis of the intended union.

But with all this, the difficulties in the way of its accomplishment are innumerable. It is in the details of such a project, and not in the principle, that opposition would naturally develop itself. Taking a view of a general scheme embracing all the Provinces, what are the graver difficulties which present themselves? There is a vastly unequal public debt which will somehow have to be readjusted and funded in the name of the new Confederacy, before Downing-street and Lombard-street will hear of the scheme. At present that debt is most unequally distributed. There is the wide division of interest which must arise in determining what shall be considered local, as apart from federal public works, especially in the future management of the canals. In these the maritime Provinces will have altogether a secondary interest. There is the conflict which must come in forming any basis for tariff legislation; the interests of Upper Canada, the wealthiest and most populous province being diametrically opposed even now to Lower Canada, and likely to be still more opposed to the maritime colonies. There is the question of maintaining a multiplicity of petty Provincial Courts beside a Vice-Royalty, or something equivalent thereto. There is the question whether the local governors shall continue to come from England, or whether the Viceroy shall be the only direct representative of the Imperial power. There is the still graver matter of military defence—where Imperial responsibility, risk and outlay shall end, and where Provincial responsibility shall begin. There will be the question, sooner or later, of the right of the new Confederacy to treat directly with foreign powers instead of through the British Foreign Office. And even this lengthy enumeration of the magnitude of the details which have to be settled before the basis of a union shall have been laid, barely presents a title of the grave obstacles which have to be overcome.

To outside onlookers the chances of the proposed confederation appear to be uncertain enough, whether we regard the Imperial or Provincial agents who have the task more immediately in hand. Even the small union compact of 1840 would most probably never have come into existence but for the vast influence, indomitable will, statesmanlike ability, daring and energy of Lord SYDENHAM. Certainly but for him it would have been the slow drivelling work of years. We presume no one thinks that Lord SYDENHAM's successor possesses the same requisites, or that he is more than an ordinary representative of the class of Whig placemen who have been useful to Lord PALMERSTON in Parliament, and who find in the colonies a chance for recruiting their personal fortunes. Nor for all that appears in the provincial legislation of recent years do the present generation of political leaders seem to rise above the condition of unscrupulous, reckless and unscrupulous party prize-fighters. They may, however, come up to the dignity of their work, and if so, we shall be glad to record the fact.

The Fiendish Character of the Rebellion.

Shortly after the massacre at Fort Pillow, Congress appointed a committee to investigate the matter and report the facts.

An examination of the report shows that it relates facts which make one horror-struck. Such atrocities would seem to be simply incredible—the work of absolute demons. But we are compelled to admit that the statements are strictly true. The Committee annex to their report the evidence taken by them, giving in detail the examination of witnesses under oath. They also give the examination of some recently received prisoners, taken by exchange from Richmond, and accompany this testimony with photographs of some of those prisoners. The rebels have, in cold blood, murdered thousands of them, by the most remorseless of all murders—by starvation. These photographs are more eloquent than words. The rebels went to work deliberately to kill or ruin the constitution of every prisoner, so that the man might never be able to lift a musket again, even if his life was spared to him.

Our brave soldiers who fell into the hands of these barbarians were killed by inches—starved to death. And this was done, not in some corner of the Confederate States, beyond the personal oversight of DAVIS and his Cabinet. In the Capital itself, in Richmond, where this barbarian has his headquarters, where he ostentatiously parades his worship to the God of mercy and justice, and makes frequent appeals for Divine aid, DAVIS has for months been murdering our unhappy kinsmen and friends, with deliberate purpose.

Let any one go and see those returned prisoners, or rather, the few of them who still survive. Let him listen to their histories, and look at their wan and hollow features, and he will not dare disbelieve the story of their sufferings. Then let him go to David's Island, and see the rebels there, and compare their condition with that of the men we have received from Richmond.

This rebellion is a war of desperate and reckless men, who hesitate and scruple at nothing to gain their ends. They would murder every prisoner at once if they dared to do it—if they did not think that it would harm them in Europe. So they murder the white prisoners by starvation, and kill the black prisoners outright, and also such of the white as they find fighting with black troops.

They killed men at Fort Pillow who had no arms in their hands, and who begged for their lives. Some of the victims were Union men—white men from Tennessee—and while DAVIS' ruffians were driving their bayonets into these men, after they had surrendered, they cried, "Kill the damned home-made Yankees." "They are no better than negroes. Stick them."

In some instances they restrained themselves long enough to take some of these disarmed men and nail them alive to buildings, and then set fire to the buildings, while they stood and gloated over the slow and horrible death of the wretched victims.

To those who doubt these facts, we say read the evidence. It is horrible, and almost incredible; but the witnesses must be believed, for many of them are now on their death-beds, and their wounds and mutilation corroborate their statements.

And yet we have among us men who would suffer this malignant traitor, guilty of deliberate perjury and of a thousand atrocities, to rule this country. We have men who say that they have no choice in this war, and that they care not which side triumphs. Barbarism and civilization struggling for the control of this continent, and they neutral!

We are, in truth, fighting for our lives and liberties. We are arrayed against a great body of disciplined men, thoroughly brutalized by a century of Slavery, and who declare that they will make no peace except upon their own terms, and that they will be exterminated sooner than submit. We have no choice. We must subdue them or be conquered by them.

AMENDMENTS TO THE POSTAL LAWS.—The bill amendatory of the postal laws passed the Senate on Saturday.

This is one of the most important measures before Congress. It will not only save the Government thousands of dollars, but it will enable the department to carry into effect that most important reform—Railway Distribution. The measure contemplated sweeps away the old complicated system of commissions now rendered useless by the prepayment of postage by stamps. It costs the Government tens of thousands of dollars annually to keep the accounts with the New-York office and other offices. This, measurably, is a needless expenditure, and it is satisfactory to find that the bill sweeps all such useless machinery away, and gives each Postmaster a salary corresponding with the receipts of his office.

The bill also provides that the letter-carriers, a most useful class of public officials, shall receive adequate compensation. It effectually extinguishes all the bogus accommodation Post-offices, with which this City is so sorely afflicted. It amends and renders more stringent and certain the law which affixes the penalty to the opening and stealing of letters and other mailable matter.

We understand the Post-office Committee of the House have unanimously reported a similar bill. If so, this will render a reference of the Senate bill unnecessary in the House, and will enable the Chairman of the House Committee to ask its immediate passage. We earnestly trust the House will not adjourn without taking decisive action on so important a reform.

FROM EUROPE.

VERY LATEST PER CITY OF CORK.

NEW-YORK, Sunday, June 26.

Papers of the 13th, per City of Cork, contain the following intelligence:

MADRID, Saturday, June 11.

In to-day's sitting of Congress, Señor NOCEDA said the diffusion of Democratic ideas must be prevented by all means. The sole mention of the word Democracy in the newspapers ought to make them liable to punishment.

TURIN, Saturday, June 11.

The Stampa, of this evening, says: "The statement made by the Gazette de Cologne, that negotiations had recently taken place between France and Italy, are partly inaccurate and partly false."

PARIS, Saturday, June 11.

The Emperor will return to Paris on Tuesday next. Baron DE BURGRAVE will shortly proceed to Kissingen to pay his respects to the Czar.

The Gazette de France, of this evening, publishes a rumor that the Emperor of Russia will come to Paris on Monday next, under the strictest incognito.

PARIS, Sunday, June 12.

The Moniteur of this evening says the disturbance which have broken out at Sfax appear to have no connection with the insurrection properly so called. It was asserted that the insurgents have sent cavalry to Sfax, to disown by that demonstration all connection with the authors of the disturbance.

PARIS, Saturday, June 11—3:30 P. M.

The Bourse has been dull. Rentes closed at 67f.

COPENHAGEN, Saturday, June 11.

The Germans have abandoned Aalborg, and withdrawn south. The Dagbladet of to-day says: Schleswig Holstein, as a separate State within the monarchy, is incompatible with Denmark's rights and honor. No Danish King can listen to such a plan of government, inclined to such a proposal, and would soon learn that the people will not sacrifice their national independence at any price.

The Österreichische Zeitung of Vienna, June 11, says: the British Cabinet vehemently opposes the idea of demonstration proposed by the German Powers, and even goes as far as to threaten warlike demonstrations.

LONDON, Sunday, June 12.

Consols after official hours closed at 90⅝@90¾.

A Cabinet Council was held on Saturday afternoon.

The Late Conspiracy a Failure—Price of Provisions—The New Archbishop.

By the arrival of the brig Trackless, Capt. LAZARUS, at this port yesterday, from Port-au-Prince 12th inst., we have news up to that date.

The conspiracy that was on foot some time ago, has proved a complete failure, having involved the arrest of four of the most prominent citizens of Port-au-Prince, who have gone under a very fair trial, two of whom have been condemned to death, and the others to three years' imprisonment. But the clemency of the President has commuted the sentence of the former to the same term of imprisonment. Positive proof of their guilt was not adduced under the general rigor.

We are enjoying a very fair season at present, and the general health is good.

Tranquillity reigns throughout the whole country. The provision market is rather brisk, notwithstanding the high rates demanded and prices augment daily.

The Roman Catholic Archbishop had just arrived per steamer from Liverpool, and has been installed with all pomp due to his rank.

A new light was shown at Lamentine Point, Hayti, for the first time May 15. Its position is latitude 18° 30' north, longitude 74° 31' 45" west, bearing of lantern is French feet; visible 6 marine miles.

Speech of Gen. McClellan at Rocky Mountain, Tennessee, on the Occasion Sunday, June 26.

Maj.-Gen. McCLELLAN was serenaded last night at the Fort William Henry Hotel, and made his appearance on the balcony amid cheers. Order having been restored, he was introduced to the large assemblage by Judge Brown, and spoke as follows:

"I thank you, my friends, for this welcome and pleasing evidence of your regard. It is a most happy termination of the delightful week I have passed in the midst of this beautiful region, among such warm and friendly hearts. When men come as you have done, we mount miles from the mountains and valleys, it means something more than empty compliment or idle courtesy. At all events I so regard it; and, understand this sudden gathering of men, who are in truth the strength of the nation, as intended to show your love and gratitude to the gallant men who have so long fought under my command; and as an evidence to any who may dare to doubt whether abroad, at home, or in the rebellious States, that the people of this portion of the country intend to support to the last the Union of our great nation—the sacredness of its Constitution and Laws, against whoever may attack them. I do not doubt myself that this kind demonstration is a mark of personal regard to me, but it means far more than that. You add to the cogent arguments afforded by the deeds of your sons and brothers in the field, the expansion and weight of your opinion in favor of the justice and vital importance of the real cause for which we are fighting, and the cause which should never be perverted or cast aside of. It has been my good fortune to have had near me in very trying times many of your near relations. In truth, there meet me among you now, men who went with me through the memorable seven days of battle that commenced two years ago to-day. It is only just to such you now ask for a patient hearing of your sons and brothers who were with me in the Army of the Potomac from Yorktown to Antietam. Yet how could they be other than brave and patriotic? for they first saw the light amidst scenes classical in our earliest history, and sprang from ancestry who won and held their mountains in hundreds of contests against the Indians, the French and the English. After a gallant defence of the now ruined ramparts of William Henry, the blood of many of your grandsires moistened the very ground on which you now stand in a battery permitted by the rules of equity of Montcalm, who, two years afterward, suffered for his crimes in the great battle under the walls of Quebec, when others of your ancestors bore a much honorable part. Ticonderoga, Crown Point, Bennington, will all remain sacred to you by the bravery of your fathers, who there made illustrious the name of American troops. In this later and more dreadful war you and yours have proved worthy of the reputation of your predecessors. And whatever sacrifices may yet be necessary I am confident that you will never consent willingly to be citizens of a divided and degraded nation, but that you will ever support the actions of your fellow-countrymen in the field that we shall be victorious and again have a united country, where the hearts of the North and South shall again beat in unison as they did in the good old times of the Revolution, when our Union and Constitution shall be as firm as the mountains which encircle this lovely lake, and the future of the Republic shall be as serene and pure as the waters of Horicon when no breeze ripples its surface."

Squall in Philadelphia—Loss of Life.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, June 26.

There was a severe squall this afternoon, in which the yacht Young America was sunk. Four lives are reported lost. The Lotus broke her boom and had her mainsail torn to pieces. The Delaway and Cliffe fouled.

Fire at Rockaway.

We learn that the Pavilion at Rockaway, together with the cottages within its grounds and several other adjacent buildings, was burned on Saturday afternoon. This will be a serious loss to the many persons in this city who had intended to make it their Summer home. It was a very large hotel, and had just passed into the hands of Mr. WALMSLEY, formerly of Rochester, who had taken pains to make it specially attractive and agreeable for the season. The proximity of Rockaway to the city, and the excellence of its bathing, had made it a favorite watering place.

A Card.

Mr. ISAAC HERMANSON, late Navy Agent, has seen fit to publish a card, in which he has made free and disclaiming use of my name. I desire to submit a brief reply.

Mr. HERMANSON has been arrested on a precept issued from the Circuit Court of the United States. That precept issued on an affidavit made by me. The affidavit has been published; it was made by me voluntarily, when I was not in confinement, or under duress. I have made oath to it, and now, in the full enjoyment of my freedom, having read Mr. HERMANSON's published statements, I publicly declare that the statements in that affidavit are true. Mr. HERMANSON denies them. We are at issue; the question is one of veracity.

Mr. HERMANSON requests the public to suspend its judgment, and not condemn or censure him until he has had an opportunity to be heard. This is a most reasonable request; I heartily unite in it, and further add my own earnest request to the public not to condemn or censure me, until the issue between Mr. HERMANSON and myself shall be passed upon by the judicial tribunal authorized to make a decision.

Mr. HERMANSON appeals to his character as a citizen and a man of business. I make a like appeal in my own behalf. I make no parade of my character, and have not the least desire to thrust it upon the attention of the public. I would rather say I have no character to speak of myself; but this I feel, that under the circumstances I may say I have spent a long and honorable business life in the city of Washington, and in this City, as Mr. HERMANSON has, and venture to add my business transactions have been as [illegible] as his. [illegible] Mr. HERMANSON, [illegible] I have never been charged with any offense against the laws of the country, civil or military, and answer now to any charge that might be brought against me. [illegible] I named myself, unbidden, the [illegible] and as the penalty to be inserted in the bond, and if the penalty had been $1,000 [illegible] could have been easily found to secure the amount. But my offer for several weeks was not accepted with, until the Government, upon the most mature reflection, though intelligent and diligent inquiry and search became satisfied, I am led to believe and believe, I never found guilty of any intentional wrong in my dealings with the Government; then, and even then, was the offered bond accepted, and I was discharged. The security I have given is not personal, but real security.

[illegible] I have always stood ready to meet any charge that may be [illegible] and no by [illegible] I [illegible] If the state of facts ought to cast any suspicion upon my veracity, then it cannot assume such proportions; but if not, I stand to-day as much entitled to belief as before my arrest.

JOS. L. SAVAGE.

JUNE 26, 1864.

RECEPTION OF VETERAN SOLDIERS.—The remaining members of Companies I and K, First New-Jersey Regiment, and of HEZEKIAH's Battery, in all, numbering about forty men, enlisted from Hoboken, and who have just been mustered out from the three years service, received a public reception and supper at Hoboken on Saturday night. The supper took place at Otto Cottage Garden, and was given by the Fire Department and citizens. The veterans were welcomed home in an eloquent and patriotic speech by Gen. R. B. V. Watson, on behalf of the Mayor of the City.

AMUSEMENTS.

Niblo's Garden.—The current is the last week of the engagement of Mme. Vestvali and of "Bel Demonio." Other attractive only will retire into the country for rest, whether to recruit her health, after the "terrific" amusement exertions, for the Fall campaign. On the following Monday "The Duke's Motto" will be revived, for one week only. Miss Louisa Weaver will be the next star at this house.

Wallack's Theatre.—Mr. Wallack closes an unusually busy and successful season on Thursday evening next, retiring to his marine residence at Long Branch for the Summer months. This evening "The Bachelor of Arts" will be presented, on to-morrow, "Americans in Paris," and "Rural Felicity," on Wednesday by a general request at the box office, "London Assurance" will be repeated. The closing piece on Thursday being "Rosedale," its one hundred and twenty-fifth representation. The Summer season, under the management of Mr. Lawrence Barrett, the Treasurer of the house, will commence on Monday next, when, as we have previously stated, the new and popular London Comedy of "The Winning Suit" will be performed for the first time on this side of the Atlantic. A number of the leading members of the present company will be retained, and several additions made, among them a Mr. McIntosh, an English actor of repute, who will make his debut in this country; Mr. A. H. Davenport, &c.

Broadway Theater.—The present is the sixth week of Mr. Chanfrau's engagement, and closes the season. The "Octoroon" is announced, in which he appears as Salem Scudder, and Miss Janet Hayden as Zoe. Mr. Chanfrau has made a most excellent impression on Broadway audiences, and it is to be hoped that this is not his last appearance before them. He is a comedian of great talent and versatility, excellent in everything he undertakes, and unrivaled in many. That he has been so long away from the boards of his own City is somewhat inconsistent with the last of our managers.

Olympic Theater.—Mrs. John Wood will terminate the run of "Aladdin," and her season at the same time, on Saturday evening next, when she will retire for the Summer, while her sister star, the graceful Gallatti, will depart en route for Mexico. Mrs. Wood we shall see again when the leaves commence falling, but the sparkling Gallatti will be lost to her New-York admirers, if not to fete, at least for a very lengthened period; they had better therefore make the most of the few fleeting opportunities that remain. It is rumored that the English Opera Company, who do not appear to be very harmonious in their business arrangements, as a commonwealth, are about leasing the house for a Summer season.

Mr. E. Lamb's Burnside at the Winter Garden To-night.—This excellent low comedian, late of Niblo's Garden, will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit this evening, which has been tendered him by a large circle of friends, as a token of their esteem of his professional merits, social qualities, and kindness of heart. There are few more pains-taking, zealously improving, and reliable actors on the New-York stage. His quiet, unobtrusive manners, devotion to his art, and freedom from that vulgarity which so frequently furnishes a low comedian's representation in the minds of right-thinking people, justly entitle him to this recognition of unassuming talent. Mr. Lamb will be assisted by a quite large number of the leading members of the profession. The bill is an excellent one, and embraces three popular pieces.

Barnum's Museum.—There is no diminution in the attractions here. Miss Major Coleman, the Water spy and heroine, continues to be the cynosure of all eyes, and outside the lecture-room to be crowded to its utmost capacity at each of her daily appearance, when she details with charming naiveté her trials and sufferings in the Union cause. We are much mistaken if she has not during the short time she has been at the Museum, caused a large number to be added to the list of recruits in this City. Mr. Charles F. Collins, the English comic vocalist, has been eminently successful, and has been retingaged. His rendition of "The Cure," of which he is the original interpreter, provoke uproarious merriment and an unlimited number of demands for its repetition. The popular dancers, Mlle. Rosenzweig, also remain.

Hellen's Halle Diabolique will only remain open until the Fourth of July, when his Satanic Majesty's drawing-room will close until the first of Sept ember. Although there is no lack of good paying audiences, and some people are weak enough to imagine Hellen is on a specially good understanding with the proprietor of a notoriously hot place not mentionable to ears polite, he is compelled to succumb to the heat and suspend operations until the Fall, employing the interim in the preparation of new marvels of prestidigitation. His present new programme is quite as astounding as was his first. No one has been able to discover how the marvellously clever Davenport Cabinet feat and the appearance of the ghost in the box is accomplished; many persons have visited the salon again and again, with the hope of solving the mystery, but all are compelled to give it up.

The Central Park Shakespeare Statue.—A benefit in aid of this fund is to take place in the course of a few evenings, at the Winter Garden, when the tragedy of "Julius Cæsar" is to be presented with the extraordinary attraction of the appearance of the three sons of the late Mr. J. B. Booth in the three leading roles, viz: Mr. Edwin Booth as Brutus, Mr. J. Wilkes Booth as Mark Antony, and Mr. J. B. Booth as Cassius, supported by a full corps of volunteer aids. This novel and interesting trio of attractions will, of course, tax the effort of filling the house to its utmost capacity, even if the thermometer indicates fever heat.

Anschutz's German Opera Troupe has been quite successful ever since Mr. Gaston undertook the management. The company, which now includes Carl Formes as leading basso, are at the Front-Street Theatre, Baltimore.

Pierre Corneille.—Madame Cheneau, a grand niece of this celebrated French dramatic poet, died recently at Vernon, (department of Eure,) in the seventy-sixth year of her age. She had expended for some years most entirely all a pension from the French Government of 600 francs per annum.

Mdlle. Vestvali Lund—a cousin of Felicita Vestvali—has created quite a sensation at the Stadt Theatre. She appears to-morrow evening as Margaret in the German dramatic version of "Faust."

Death of Madame Isabel Curiac.—The Scenes of this brilliant Spanish dancer, which took place on Monday evening last, took the public by surprise, although it was expected by those who were on terms of private friendship with her. The immediate cause of her death was exhaustion of her system caused by deep-seated ulceration of the larynx and bronchial passages, which defied the utmost skill and continuous attention of Dr. Mott, &c. Before her death she received the last rites of the Catholic Church. Some two hours before her death she made her will, leaving her only child—a little girl of some five or six years of age—well provided for.

An Affray in the Twenty-Second Precinct.

FOUR POLICEMEN STABBED BY ONE MAN.

Late last evening a serious affray occurred at the corner of Eighth-avenue and Forty-seventh-street, during which a man named Byrne, (the first name has not transpired,) member of Engine Company No. 1, stabbed four policemen of the Twenty-second Precinct. The names of the wounded are Lieut. Michael Carey, Lewis Benedict, John C. Clowes and Martin Byrne. It seems that the trouble originated between Officers Carey and Byrne. The latter struck Carey while he was on his post and then ran, followed by a party of Byrne's associates. Word was immediately sent to the Station, when Capt. Story started with a platoon of men for the scene of the trouble. At the corner of Forty-second-street and Eighth-avenue the crowd was overtaken by the officers, but Byrne had got into a house in Forty-second-street near Eighth-avenue, and the father of Byrne locked the door so they could not enter. The father is a police clerk at the Fourth District Court. Up to a late hour no arrest had been made. The policemen are not dangerously injured.

FROM CANADA.

The Constitution of the Province to be Changed, and a Federal Union Established.

Correspondence of the New-York Times:

Quebec, Wednesday, June 22, 1864.

Until to-day political events here have not been of any interest to Americans. Now, however, an event has occurred of the greatest possible importance to the Province, and of some consequence to the neighboring States.

For two or three years the opposing parties in the Legislature have been very evenly balanced, and several successive governments have endeavored to administer affairs with very small majorities. The present Administration, at the head of which stands Sir E. P. Taché, and which includes among its members Messrs. Cartier, Galt and John A. Macdonald, was defeated in the House of Commons about a week ago; and it became necessary either to dissolve the House, or to strengthen their position in it. Preferring the latter alternative, Hon. George Brown, editor of the Toronto Globe, was approached, and the result of negotiations with him is, that a Federal Government is to be established for Canada, with provisions for the entry into the new Federal Union of New-Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and the Red River Territory.

Very little is known as yet of the precise nature of the scheme to be devised, but it appears to be this—that members are to be elected to all in the Federal Assembly in numbers bearing some proportion to the population and resources of the several Provinces, these members to deal with general questions while sitting together, and then to resolve themselves in the same place (Ottawa) into local Legislatures, dealing with local questions. Thus it is proposed to get rid of the expense of separate local Parliaments. The Federal body is to have more power than that existing with you, and the local bodies to derive their powers from the Federal Assembly rather than to give or delegate power thereto.

A royal commission is to be issued to arrange details and to visit England and the Lower Provinces to procure the assent and adhesion of those interested.

Lord Monck, the Governor-General of British North America, has borne a considerable share in the negotiations which have led to this result, which renders the assent of the Imperial Government the more probable.

It is not unlikely that simultaneously with the establishment of the Federal Union, negotiations may occur with Britain as to maintenance of military and naval forces in this part of America, of which a share of the expense would have to be borne by the Provinces.

The measure for the carrying of this plan into effect is to be submitted next session of our Provincial Parliament, and in the interval Mr. Brown is to quiz the Ministry, or else to be Chairman of the Royal Commission, in order to help in drawing up the new constitution.

PROPOSALS FOR $250,000 OF "RIOT Damages Indemnity Bonds, No. 2," of the County of New-York.

Sealed proposals will be received at the Comptroller's Office until Monday, the 27th of June, 1864, at 2 o'clock P. M., when the same will be publicly opened, for the purchase of the whole or any part of the sum of Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars ($250,000) of "Riot Damages Indemnity Bonds, No. 2," of the County of New-York, authorized by Chapter 7, and as amended by Chapter 326 of the Laws of 1864, and by an ordinance of the Board of Supervisors, approved by the Mayor June 16, 1864.

The said bonds will bear interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, payable half-yearly, on the first day of May and November in each year, and the principal will be redeemable on the first day of November, 1868.

The proposals will state the amount of bonds desired, and the price per one hundred dollars thereof, and the persons whose proposals are accepted will thereupon be required to deposit with the County Treasurer (at the Broadway Bank) the sums awarded to them respectively.

On presenting to the Comptroller the receipts of the County Treasurer for such deposits, the parties will be entitled to receive bonds for equal amounts of the par value of the sums awarded to them bearing interest from the dates of payments.

Each proposition should be sealed and indorsed "Proposals for Riot Damages Indemnity Bonds, No. 2," and the same inclosed to a second envelope, addressed to the Comptroller.

The right is reserved to reject any or all of the bids it considered necessary to protect or promote the interests of the County.

THE GOVERNMENT LOAN
THIS LOAN IS AUTHORIZED by Act of Congress of March 3, 1864, which provides for its REDEMPTION IN COIN, at any period not less than ten or more than forty years from its date, at the pleasure of the Government.
UNTIL ITS REDEMPTION, five per cent. interest is to be paid semi-annually, IN COIN.
SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE LOAN are received by the National Banks in United States notes, or bank credit, or other funds, which are taken by them on terms advantageous to the subscribers.
ITS EXEMPTION FROM STATE OR LOCAL TAXATION adds from one to three per cent. per annum to its value.
THE RATE OF INTEREST, six per cent., although less than five per cent. in coin, is at present greater on account of the difference between the market value of currency and gold.
AS A RULE, the five per cent. specie securities of all solvent Governments are always at par or above, and currency now funded in the National Loan will be worth its face in gold, besides paying a regular and liberal per centage to the holder.
THE AUTHORIZED AMOUNT of this loan is Five Hundred Million Dollars. The amount of subscriptions reported to the Treasury at Washington is over $70,000,000.
SUBSCRIPTIONS WILL BE RECEIVED by the Treasurer of the United States at Washington, and the Assistant Treasurers at New-York, Boston and Philadelphia, and by the First National Bank of New-York, No. 4 Wall-st.

I have made a chemical analysis of the Tropical Balsam prepared by Messrs. Carreno Bros. & Co., and found, after a thorough examination of it, that it is composed exclusively of vegetable substances—principally of gums and resins—possessing decided medicinal properties. It contains nothing that can prove deleterious to health when taken internally or applied externally; its astringent and healing properties being well calculated to stop hemorrhages and heal wounds, ulcers, &c.

HAUNTED HEARTS.
THE GREAT NOVEL.
WHAT IS SAID OF IT.
The New-York Evening Post, Mr. W. C. Bryant's paper, says:
"The mystery is well sustained, and the entire novel is superior to anything the author has yet produced."
The Boston Traveler says:
"It will add to her reputation, and be even more sought for than her earlier book. * * * In no novel of the day are there stronger exhibitions of character, more natural action, or better maintained interest, than to be found in Haunted Hearts."
The New-York Evangelist remarks:
"The characters are powerfully drawn."
The Boston Advertiser tells us:
"The book will be read as one of thrilling interest by many who will not pause to recognize interest of a higher character than is usually found in American novels."

A PROCLAMATION.
And it came to pass in the reign of Abraham, whose surname was Lincoln, in the eighty and sixth year of the Independence of the States of America, that a mighty rebellion arose in that land.
And Abraham said unto Simon from the Keystone State, "Be thou my armor-bearer."
And Simon did so he was commanded, and marshaled immense hosts of young and valiant warriors from the East, even from the Kennebec; from across the great River Mississippi, and from beyond the Rocky Mountains, from every State called by name. And some of the kind whose hair curled not a little they said:
"Those who have risen against us are cowards, and when they behold our banners they will surely run"—but they didn't.
And it came to pass these two mighty armies went forth to fight on the plains of Manassas.
And Simon's men fought through valiant and brave, yea, smote hip and thigh, even so much that they hurried brilliantly back to lean on Abraham's bosom.
And many were slain, but more were wounded.
Then there was great commotion throughout the land. And Abraham called aloud upon the wise men and men of skill to save the sick and give new strength unto the wounded.
And, all these were in the North and Dr. Drake, versed in medicine, but of exceeding modesty.
And when Abraham and the people heard of the wonderful cures which were wrought by Drake, Abraham said: "My child, you must not suffer; give me thy drink to drink, and I will divest a sense."
And so Abraham drank, and said there was nothing like it, not even in Sangamon County; that it was vitae to the line yet found for the stomach, and became above three times in fighting the masters of the plantations, it shall for evermore be called Plantation Bitters, and so it has been.
And the wonderful work which it has performed is witnessed to this day in every town, parish, village and hamlet, where the habit of our millions prefered Syrupers, where our women complaints, and where climate or exposure destroys strength and appetite.
And he said: "Let it be proclaimed throughout the length and breadth of the land, from the valleys and mountain-tops, that all who suffer from fevers, dyspepsia, want of appetite, nervous headache and mental despondency will find relief through the Plantation Bitters. They add tone to the stomach and brilliancy to the mind, of which I, O people, am a living example."
And Drake did as he was commanded, and got him a place in the great City of New-York. And as many as came in sale him were healed and went on their way rejoicing.

CATARRH CURED.

THE CASE OF HUTCHINGS, THE "LIGHTNING CALCULATOR."

There was published in these columns a few days since the remarkable cure of Hutchings, the "Lightning Calculator," so well known to the public during the many years he exhibited his wonderful arithmetical powers at Barnum's Museum, by the celebrated Oculist and Aurist, Dr. Von Eisenberg, of this City. Hutchings is represented to have been on the point of death, and but for the timely interference of the Doctor, would now be rotting in his grave. This is a remarkable case, and worthy of the attention of persons similarly afflicted.

We think it is but just to Doctor Von Eisenberg to call public attention to this case. There are hundreds in the community suffering from catarrh, who, like the "Lightning Calculator," if not actually praying for death, are ready to accept of anything that promises to relieve them from their distresses. To such, we would say, table not with transparent hope, this article, without unnecess

$2,000,000 LOAN
OF THE
COUNTY OF NEW-YORK.

Subscriptions are hereby invited to a loan of two million dollars, authorized by an ordinance of the Board of Supervisors, approved by the Mayor June 16, 1864, entitled "an ordinance to provide for the procurement of volunteers for the armies of the Union, as part and parcel of the quota of the City and County of New-York, under any future call of the President for men."

The proper books for such subscriptions will be opened at the Comptroller's office on and after SATURDAY, the 25th of June, instant, and will remain open until the whole sum shall be taken.

Subscribers will be required to deposit with the County Treasurer, at the Broadway Bank, within five days after entering their subscriptions the amount subscribed for by them respectively, and on presenting his receipts for the money to the Comptroller, they will receive bonds of the County for equal amounts, redeemable on or before June 1, 1880, with interest from the date of payment, at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

Our fellow-citizens and the public generally are respectfully invited to cooperate with the Board of Supervisors in the benevolent and patriotic purpose of supplying the quota of men from this County, on the call of the President for more men for the army, soon to be made public, without resorting to a draft for that purpose. Action will not be taken to raise volunteers under the ordinance referred to, until a sufficient amount is subscribed to warrant the Committee in proceeding in this matter.

CHICAGO AND GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY COMPANY
SEVEN PER CENT.
FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS.

The Subscribers now offer for sale the remainder of the issue of Seven per cent. First Mortgage Bonds of the Chicago and Great Eastern Railway Company, appropriated to the construction of their road from Chicago to La Otto, Indiana.

These bonds have all been purchased for the completion of the entire line, much below the present market value, and are now going forward to Chicago. The work is rapidly progressing, and the Company expect to open the road for trains early in the coming Fall, forming a new and very short trunk line from Chicago to the Eastern markets.

The interest payable during construction has been provided, and is now on deposit with the Bankers of the Company. Apply to

PROPOSALS FOR LOAN.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, June 23, 1864.

Sealed offers will be received at this Department, under the Act of March 3, 1863, until noon of WEDNESDAY, the 29th of June, 1864, for bonds of the United States, to the amount of thirty-three millions, being the amount of unaccepted offers under the notice of Proposals for Loan, dated 6th instant. The bonds will bear an annual interest of six per centum, payable semi-annually in coin, on the first days of July and January of each year, and redeemable after the 20th of June, 1881.

Each offer must be for fifty or one hundred dollars, or some multiple of one hundred dollars, and must state the sum, including premium, offered for each hundred dollars in bonds, or for fifty, when the offer is for no more than fifty. Two per cent of the principal, excluding premium, of the whole amount offered must be deposited, as guarantee for payment of subscription if accepted, with the Treasurer of the United States, at Washington, or with the Assistant Treasurer at New-York, Boston, Philadelphia or St. Louis, or with the designated Depository at Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Louisville, Chicago, Detroit or Buffalo; or with any National Banking Association authorized to receive deposits, which may consent to transact the business without charge. Duplicate certificates of deposits will be issued to depositors by the officer or association receiving them; the original of which must be forwarded with the offers to the Department. All deposits should be made in time for advice of offers, with certificates to reach Washington not later than the morning of July 6. No offer not accompanied by its proper certificate of deposit will be considered.

The Coupon and Registered Bonds issued will be of the denominations of $50, $100, $500 and $1000. Registered Bonds of $5,000 and $10,000 will also be issued if required.

All offers received will be opened on Wednesday, the 6th of July, by the Secretary or one of the Assistant Secretaries. The awards will be made by the Secretary, to the highest offerers, and notice of acceptance or declination will be immediately given to the respective offerers; and, in case of acceptance, bonds of the description and denominations preferred will be sent to the subscribers at the cost of the Department, on final payment of instalments. The original deposit of two per cent. will be reckoned in the last instalment paid by successful offerers, and will be immediately returned to those whose offers may not be accepted.

The amount of accepted offers must be deposited with the Treasurer or other officer or association authorized to act under this notice on advice of acceptance of offer, or as follows: One-third on or before the 15th; one-third on or before the 15th; and the balance, including the premium and original two per cent. deposit on or before the 20th of July. Interest on bonds will begin with the date of deposit. Parties preferring may pay the accrued interest from date of bond, July 1, to date of deposit.

Offers under this notice should be indorsed "Offer for Loan," and addressed to the Secretary of the Treasury.

No offer will be considered at a less rate of premium than four per cent.

S. P. CHASE,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Notice to officers receiving deposits under this advertisement:

The preliminary certificate of deposit of two per cent. must not be credited upon your accounts current, as it is to be included in the final deposit.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time by DR. WARD & CO., No. 2 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, without the use of mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for the cure of a private character. In 26 years' practice he has prescribed and treated for Secret Diseases more persons than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other one or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call on me will take but little money and time to restore them. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. The life, special experience of this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without exposure of disease hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis, the last vestige of medical skill, eradicated from the system. Seminal emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency or loss of sexual power restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons unable to call may receive prompt treatment elsewhere; may be permanently cured by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 2 Lispenard-st., Orl. state or write.

MANHOOD AND THE VIGOUR OF YOUTH restored in three days by Dr. POWERS' ESSENCE OF LIFE. This wonderful agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitution, enables the young, the aged, the married, the Sexual Debility, and impediment to marriage generally; Nervous Debility, Premature Decay, Incapacity, resulting from self-abuse, &c. The time required to cure the most advanced cases of one week. Failure is impossible. This life-restoring remedy should be taken by all about to marry, as no effects are permanent. Young men who have made the fearful mistake of destroying disease, secret habits, Dr. POWERS' Invigorating Essence is a never-failing cure. Sold by WALTER POWERS, M. D., No. 61 Franklin-st., between Broadway and Elm-st., New-York.

DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP CURES GENERAL diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies have proved inefficacious, by a change in the habits of the patient, cures without the disgusting or injurious effects of all other remedies; cures in less time than six weeks. It rots out the poisonous fluid that blood is active to secure health this remedy is unfailing. It is a vegetable preparation, and can be procured in any where, but at his office, No. 6 Division-st., New-York City. A book that treats of the greatest effects of early abuse, free, twenty-four pages. Sent by mail for ten three-cent stamps. Male and Female Preventive, five dollars.

INCOMPETENT TO THE MARRIED AND THOSE ABOUT TO BE MARRIED.—DR. T. R. HAYNES, Graduate of the MARLBORO' STREET MEDICAL COLLEGE, London, Author of the MARRIED MAN'S PRIVATE MEDICAL COMPANION, a strictly instructive work for those whose health or circumstances render it the rapid process of marriage with safety, and the avoidance of the fearfully sickness. Price $1. Sent by post, free of postage, $1, and addressing Box No. 1,464 G. Post-Office, New-York City. Dr. HAYNES, at No. 14 Lispenard-st., (Astor House,) N. Y. Also, at No. 31 Bowdoin-Square, Boston.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY BE CONFIDENTIALLY consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 18 years, devoted to the prevention and cure of Syphilitic, Mercurial and diseases of a delicate nature, complaints by Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been failed by quack advertisements, can call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being radically cured or no charge made.

DR. CORBITT, NO. 20 CENTER-ST., BE-tween Chambers and Reade-sts., can be consulted with confidence on diseases of a private character, of a practice of thirty-four years, three of which have been in the hospitals, of New-York and London, enables him to treat with success nervous and general debility. The victims of imposition can call on him with the certainty of being relieved, as no charge. N. B.—See Dr. Corbitt's diplomas, in his office, as member of the New-York University Medical College, and College of Surgeons, London.

DR. POWERS' PERIODICAL DROPS are designed for both married and single ladies, and are the very best thing known for the purpose, as they will bring in the monthly sickness in case of obstruction from any cause, and which all other remedies of the kind have been tried in vain. Warranted to correct the cause. Warranted as represented in every respect, or the price will be refunded. Beware of imitations. Enquire directly of Dr. POWERS, 61 Franklin-st., N. Y.

Hanging of Five Bushwhackers—Scene Attending of Execution—Nashville Penitentiary—Its Inmates—Rebel Prisoners and the Treatment of Union Men—Rebel Outrages—Nashville Marches and Bushwhackers—Inhabitants at Work—Cotton Speculators.

MEMPHIS, TENN., Tuesday, June 21, 1864.

On Friday last five men, citizens of Tennessee, were hung in the Penitentiary, in close proximity to the State Prison, situated in the southern part of this city, toward the west. The names of these unfortunate men are, WILLIAM F. LEDWARD, CYRUS L. CARNEY, JOHN R. NEBLE, THOMAS E. WEST and ELIJAH P. [illegible]. They were all charged with murder, [illegible] to kill, and robbery. They were tried and convicted by a military commission at Tullahoma, last March, Col. E. A. CARMAN, of the Thirteenth New-Jersey, acting as President of the commission. The sentence of the court was approved by the General Commanding, afterwards by the President, [illegible] publicly understood that the execution would take place between the hours of 12 and 2 P. M., [illegible] to avoid the crowd which such a spectacle is sure to attract, the execution really occurred at [illegible] o'clock. But few persons, therefore, besides the prisoners, officers and the military, witnessed the execution. But other men under the same sentence, who are now in the Penitentiary, in other cells, [illegible] the fate of their unfortunate comrades, which they [illegible] bodies. But their moral sense had become debauched by contact with treason, and the terrible influence of the depraving sentiments growing out of insurrection against the laws and Government of the country. Between rebellion, lawless outrage and murder there is but a single step. The taking of this step, so natural in the circumstances, proved fatal in their case, as it always should. The only sympathetic component, peaceable, loyal Tennessees, in its unrelenting stern, swift, and inexorable justice to the rebellious, bloody-minded guerrillas and bushwhackers, who, in shedding the blood of their fellow citizens, for no other crime than loyalty to the Government, trample alike on laws and humanity. Severe justice here is the true mercy. No man's life is safe under an undecided temporizing policy, in regard to the treatment of banded robbers and murderers. Misunderstanding, with its attendant outrages is to be in States once slave, a fixed system, for long years to come, as many crooking scars over, in spite of the suppression of the rebellion, it should be understood perfectly by every one of these gentry that the plunder, horse, and days, with a halter round his neck. This knowledge will be apt to abate and abolish the evil.

This Penitentiary the rebellion has made overflowingly populous. In addition to its regular supply of State convicts, a steady stream of malefactors, the special product of the unsteady times has, for the last two years, been setting toward, and swallowed up by its grim walls. These prisoners are composed of soldiers who have deserted, or committed other crimes, captured guerrillas, disloyal citizens accused of various misdemeanors, and offenses against the laws and the Government. Some of these are in military confinement, a few bonded, and all carefully guarded, so that no Jesse Hennan escapes are heralded here. When the arrival of rebel prisoners from the front is unusually large, as it has been several times within a twelve-month, necessity demands the use of a large enclosure adjoining the Penitentiary, and some of the room in the building itself for their accommodation. Their stay here is the number sometimes of ten or twelve hundred, in however only for a day or two, until they can be forwarded to their special receptacles provided for them farther North, in Ohio, Illinois, or other States.

The female relatives of many of these Tennessee prisoners give the State Attorney, Major Sevemmons, [illegible] a warm friend, an intelligent officer, and [illegible] man, a world of trouble. They besiege him daily with piteous appeals. A wife or mother or sister of a prisoner, accused, perhaps, of a serious crime, will enter his office, and the first salutation be a gush of tears. The Major will quietly explain the case, state the requirements of law, assure the sorrowfully petitioner, that he will do all for her he can consistently with the duties of his official position, and the only sobbing response is, "Yes, and Gov. Johnson can release him if you will." The Major is astonished. The law, so he has explained it, is growing. Crime and venality are sweeping in its meshes. It seems to the outsider, that the accused Hennan, however dear, has been a bushwhacker, scoulding, plundering, maltreating the unoffending, and richly deserving to be severely punished. All this is nothing, placed in the balance against woman's affections, prompting her call to plead. "Yes and Gov. Johnson can do it if you only will."

The worthy Attorney has told me that this is effect by a scene of daily occurrence in his office, leading him to respond from her heart's depths often to the sigh, "Oh, that I had wings like a dove that I might fly away and be at rest."

I mention this as one evidence among others, of the domestic griefs and agitations wrought by this rebellion, in the places of its chief operation. A near kinsman struck down by ball or shell in the field, where he is nobly upholding the cause of law, union and righteous government, dies, and leaves blood, and a home in desolate. But what is such a gloom and grief compared with that which must be felt by the family of an imprisoned felon, made such by becoming a traitor to his country, and by doing deeds of darkness, which treason naturally fosters? This is the very condition and these the deeds which have wrung out and are wringing the hearts of Southern households all over the sunny land.

The widow of the late President POLK has continued at her home here during all the troubles of the times, and is one of the oldest and most respected citizens. She is neither exclusive nor inconsistent. If she is not staunchly Union as yet, her heart is closed to no Union visitors. Intelligent, cultivated, courtly, dignified, she is yet unassuming and affable, with a charm about her conversation which the visitor is sure to confess. The pleasant grounds of her pleasant residence, tastefully arranged, and fresh and blooming in this early Summer time, are open to all who wish to enter them, attended entirely by her late husband's servants, a consistent forgiveness feature. I was much gratified to hear her speak in praise of our brave soldiers' conduct while visiting her grounds, as many of them constantly do. Among the numbers who had come there for so many months on boisterous and rude errands were heard at every door, no tree was marred, no shrub or flower injured, no writing scrawled anywhere, nothing defaced, no improprieties committed. They seemed to regard the ground to be in some sort sacred, as having belonged to one of the nation's high priests. There have been places in the South visited by our boys, where the same degree of reverence, I fear, was not shown, but where a freedom for relics, or a desire for mischief, or a spirit of vandalism, has tempted them to violate recognized sanctities. The tombs of the Custis family at Arlington House, defaced by scrawls and by chipping of pieces of the marble, and the monument of Washington's mother, at Fredericksburgh, similarly treated, may be cited as instances of our soldiers sometimes losing sight of what belongs to true manhood. These cases I hope are exceptional. Mrs. POLK's experience of our soldiers' courtesy contrasted, contrasts, I trust, the rule.

The great market-day of Nashville is Saturday, when market-goers must lay in a supply for two days. The city city-market, in the middle of the square, presents on this day a spectacle worth curious inspecting. The circumjacent regions pour forth then the full riches of its products. The garden, the field, the woods, the barn-yard, the fold, stream, make their several contributions to the stock of palate-tempting eatables. Wagons from the country, of bizarre pattern and curious contrivance, are planted four or five deep, the whole length of the market on either side. On the outer circle are displayed for sale, wood, hay, grain, cows with their calves, occasionally horses and mules, though the supply of these, for obvious reasons, is small. A dense and slowly-moving crowd occupies every foot of space in the interior, where various and vociferous traffic is going, amid all the bustle, clamor and excitement usually marking a high market-day.

The scale of prices is interesting, as denoting how the rebellion seize people in Tennessee to live. Butter is from 40c. to 50c. a pound; eggs, 40c. a dozen; lamb, 20c. a pound; beef, not well-fed, about the same; young potatoes, 75c. a peck; string beans, 81 a peck; a bunch of onions containing three, a dime; a bunch of turnip beets, same number, same price; a pair of very youthful chickens, a trifle larger than canary birds, 50c.; a load of wood, about half a cord, $6; a cow and calf, from fair to good, from $75 to $125. Outside of the market a like scale prevails. Oranges of ordinary size, 15c., of extraordinary size, a piece; lemons a dime each; a pair of [illegible]
